MINNEAPOLIS (Minn.,) June 10.-[Spe cial.] The power of pap has for the first time in the days of American politics nominated a President of the United States. The 114 officeholders on the floor of the convention, most of them from States hopelessly Democratic made a sufficient majority to carry H: rison through on the first ballot and thus was the die cast.

Dick Thompson of Indiana crosses the aisie with a telegram and whispers to Chauncey Depew. De Young climbs up the steps to the stage and whispers to Boutelle of Maine. A delegate from Oregon wants Alaska represented on the floor and the convention votes to do it, whereupon Boutelle remarks to neighbor that this lets in the last Federal office-holder. Michigan begins to get nervous about Alger, and secures fifteen minutes time in which to retire for consultation. More trouble developes in Alabama; this time it is all about the selection of a national committeeman, and the chairman of the delegation feels called upon to apologize for the spectacle his State is making of itself in the convention.

WOLCOTT'S GREAT SPEECH In the face of the wrangle Chairman McKinley calls for the presentation of the names of candidates, and the house, feeling that at last the supreme moment has arrived, breaks into a cheer. The author of "Ben Hur" comes down the stage and takes a seat at my elbow, just as Wolcott appears to make his falling waters at St. Anthony just outside the windows, and every one of his polished and rythmical periods was liberally showered with applause. Especially hearty was the approval of his sentence that "Blaine is a man who started the Blaine people cheering, and seeks everything for his country and nothing for himself." YELLS FOR HARRISON

Dick Thompson of Indiana takes the platform to nominate Harrison and receives an ovation. When he spoke of the great orator who would second the nomination, Depew blushed like a miss at the High school. At the mention of Harrison's name a great vell went up and the participants tried to outdo the Blaine whoop, but it was a feeble effort in comparison.

Then Eustis of Minnesota seconded Blaine's nomination in a speech awkwardly committed to memory, but it gave rise to the most tremendous demonstration ever seen in a convention. No sooner had he closed his speech with the name of Blaine and taken himself from the stage than detail. It soon warmed up in more than everybody was out of their seats and CHEERING LIKE WILD INDIANS.

They stand on chairs and wave flags and nandkerchiefs, open umbrellas, the andemonium reigning from the chairnan's desk back to the last row of chairs in the galleries. Mrs. Dick Kerens of St. Louis, whose husband was a delegate for Harrison, stands in a grest's seat behind the stage Baine. Tom Reed lifts his bulky sit feet into the seething atmosphere and flaunts aloft a banner of the stars. Near by him a beautiful girl waves a wide-open parasol and a silk flag in either hand, while her eyes sparkle and enthusiasm. While the tremendous spectacle is in progress, Spencer cheers and yells. forna glide over to the New York delegation and whisper to Depew. The band strikes up a tune, but its fifty pieces of noise are utterly drowned in the totrent of huzzas and in the rythmical shibboleth of "Blaine! Blaine! James G. Blaine!" Somebody hands the girl with the white parasol a picture of Baine set in a tri-colored star, which she tries to advance to the dele gate's seats, but the people massed in the aisle prevent her.

Boutelle of Maine gets down from the stage where he has been waving a handkerchief and does some missionary work among the delegates, and at the end of thirty-one minutes of continuous cheering the chairmans succeeds in restoring order. It was a demonstration of 'Blaine's wonderful popularity in the popular mind. DEPEW A DISAPPOINTMENT.

It did not begin to touch the Blaine, either in substance or delivery, its close. The Harrison people were determined to outdo the previous yell for Blaine, but exhausted their lungs in nineteen minutes, but it was lively while italasted, if a trifle forced. Boutelle remarked that the machine

MORE TALK AND MORE CHEERS. When the house finally got quiet Warner Miller took the stage to speak for Blaine, as did Cheatam, colored gentleman from North Carolina, for Harrison. It being black folks' afternoon Boyd of Tennesee meandered down the aisle, and getting upon the stage made the brightest and most original speech of the day, barring Wolcott's. He made a happy hit at Depew's reference to the cheering in the galleries for Blaine, by saying that it was the people in the galleries who do the voting. He declared that the women and the babies in the cradle wanted Blaine, and closed by declaring that eternity itself will catch the name of James G. Blaine. His talk called ont another tremendous scene of enthusiasm, but of shorter duration than the previous one. Spooner and Fink of Wisconsin spoke for Ben, but scarcely aided his cause, aid waves the big flag for the latter being a young man with a great roll to his "r's." He made the people very weary and the audience called time on him. L. E. MOSHER. A LOST CHANCE.

How California Might Have Secured the Vice-Presidency.

MINNEAPOLIS (Minn.,) June 10.-[Special.] You may be interested in knowing how your Californians voted this afternoon. The vote was announced by the chairman, but Robbins of Suisun demanded a roll call, which revealed the true inwardness of the delegation's sentiments. Felton, Rideout, Spence, Cole, Spencer, Pillsbury, Johnson and Button voted for Harrison. Spear voted for "McKinley, Reed and Rusk are prom-McKinley, and the other nine voted for Depew takes the platform to perform the same office for Harrison. BEFORE THE BALLOT

The Convention Opened With Both Sides Determined.

MINNEAPOLIS (Minn...) June 10 .- IBv the Associated Press. | Leaders of both the Blaine and Harrison following maintained a sleepless vigil throughout the night, endeavoring to rally every delegate, favorable to their respective leaders.

The morning opened with the Har-rison people still confident, and the Blaine managers no less determined. Chairman Clarkson said he had re-ceived a large number of telegrams this morning from prominent men throughout the country, whom heretothroughout the country, whom heretofore had been urging him to harmonize the opposition in support of the President requesting him now to makeevery effort to bring about a reconciliation of the warring factions by union on some man satisfactory to both elements. McKinley, Rusk, Reed and Allison had all been suggested in those telegrams.

son had an overly suggested in those telegrams.

Increased bitterness is shown between the factions this morning. It was discovered today that ten of the Kansas delegates, one-half of the entire delegates, one-half of the gation, was doing its utmost to bring a stampede to McKinley, and this has stirred up considerable strife in the delegation.

THE BLAINEITES CAUCUS.

After the adjournment of the convention last night Chairman Clarkson called the Blaine leaders together.
The victory of the Harrison people on the test vote was bitterly discussed. the test vote was bitterly discussed. The advisability of dropping Blaine and taking up McKinley or Sherman was considered, but without definite results.

TRANSPERRING ALLEGIANCE. Chairman Clarkson said after he reached the convention hall that the Blaine leaders had decided at a conference today not to delay the business of the convention, but reach a ballot as soon as possible. It was understood that the conference pratically decided that the entire Blaine vote should go to Mc-Kinley. It was claimed that the full Blaine strength could be transferred except Idaho and a few scattering votes. It was understood that Foraker had joined the movement and was ready to do whatever was necessary, first to defeat Harrison, second to nominate a new-man. He said the Ohio delegation ence today not to delay the business of the new-man. He said the Ohio delegation new-man. He said the Onio delegation was disposed to bury personal differences for the glory of the State. The Michigan delegates decided after a brief conference in the interest of Mc-Kinley not to present Alger's name.

CLARKSON EXPRESSES HIMSELP Asked if it had been definitely decided to present the name of Blaine, Chairman Clarkson said this morning that there had been no change in the programme, though another conference would be held to formulate definite plans. "I think, however." he said, "Blaine's name will be presented by Foraker and seconded by Wolcott and others. The situation at present is most critical. At this stage a dark horse could have the nomination if the stragglers' could unite on the right

"Massachusetts and New York can name the man if they unite. Indeed, almost any two prominent States can name the man. McKinley probably could have the nomination if he wanted it. As to Sherman, I cannot say shrely inent candidates. It is necessary to have Rusk on the ticket somewhere to the, and a compromise candidate, if there is one, must come forward after the balloting has begun.

THE PROCEEDINGS. Harrison and Blathe Placed in Nominat on -Scene of Ext ement.

MINNEAPOLIS (Minn.,) June 10 .- [By the Associated Press. The opening of the convention was delayed by noise and caucusing of delegates in groups in various parts of the hall. Both sides seemed desirous of all the time possible to get their forces ranged into some-thing like a fighting line. Nomination making had its chief centers near the Ohio, Pennsylvania, Wisconsia, Indiana onto, Pennsylvania, wisconsti, indidna and Kansas delegations and dark-horse gossip grew with every moment. At 11:35 Chairman McKinley rapped sharply with his gavel for order. When something like order was established Rev. Wayland Hoyt of Minneapolis offered a prayer. At its conclusion Senator Quay announced that Hon. Mr.

Coroner Weldon came out on the Flyer yesterday to hold an inquest on the remains of Charles W. Thompson, who was killed at the ice-works the night before. Mr. Thompson was one of Azusa's most popular young men, and his loss is a sad blow to his family and many friends. He was a trusted employeé of the ice company, and while in the discharge of his duties as night engineer, his clothing became entangled in the machinery, literally strangling him to death. He will be buried at 10:30 a.m. today. His body is now lying at Lippincott & Jenner's undertaking establishment. Thompson was well known in Los Angeles, having formerly resided in that city.

RAILROAD AFFAIRS.

Mr. Leeds and His Fight with the Commissioners.

He Explains What Were Thought to be Damaging Charges.

The Eastern Roads of the Southern Pacific Company

ing of the Santa Monica Sea veyors in Walker's Pass-Work on an Arizona Road-Notes.

The Examiner of Thursday contain some interesting gossip anent the strug-gle between the chairman of the San Francisco Traffic Association and the Board of Railroad Commissioners. That paper says that Railroad Commissioners a and Beckman are in such an angry mood toward Mr. Leeds, of the Tra Association, on account of the energy and persistent purpose manifested by him to try and force the State Commission to do its duty in the matter of reducing local freight rates that they are saying a great deal about him that must make his ears tingle, when talking to their friends in this city, Sacramento and San José. As will be remembered, Mr. Beckman last Monday, at a meetmr. Beckman last Monday, at a lineering of the commissioners, read from manuscript a long personal attack on Mr. Leeds, calling him a demagogue and characterizing him as a railroad official who was discharged by Jay Gould and who tried to be reinstated

Mr. Rea is now supplementing this abuse of Beckman's by trying to make capital out of the fact that before Leeds connected himself with the Traffic Asciation he sent a telegram to Mr. sociation he sent a telegram to Mr. Stubbs of the Southern Pacific. According to the way Mr. Rea is telling his story, Mr. Leeds telegraphed Mr. Stubbs asking him if his acceptance of the traffic Association. the chairmanship of the Traffic Associa tion would be viewed in an unfavorable light by the Southern Pacific people. To his dispatch an answer was sent by one of the railroad officials saying that it would not, and Mr. Rea then draws the conclusion that Leeds is not a sir cere, honest man in his fight against the railroad, but a hireling in disguise.

He also says that the people at Fourth and Townsend streets will attest the truth of his story, and that Mr. Leeds, himself, told him shortly after his arrival here that he did not come out to fight the Southern Pacific Com-pany. Mr. Leeds admits sending a tel-egram to Stubbs before coming out here, and, in speaking on that subject yesterday, said:

"Mr. Rea evidently thinks he is revealing a very damaging secret against me. I never thought it was a secret, for I did send Mr. Stubbs a telegram. for I did send Mr. Stubbs a telegram.
The first I ever heard of the Traffic Association of California was when I received a dispatch at St. Louis from this city signed Committee of Merchants, in which I was asked to take the chairmanship. I knew nothing of it or the men interested in it, so Mr. Stubbs, be-ing a personal friend of mine, I tel-graphed him, asking him if the Traffic graphed him, asking him if the Traffic Association was likely to be organized and who some of the people were that were interested in it. Mr. Stubbs, not being here at the time, Mr. Gray opened the dispatch and answered it. He told me that while the association had not yet been formed there was probably not much doubt but what it would be. That is all there is of truth in the matter, nothing else being said in the matter, nothing else being said on the subject by me to Messrs. Stubbs and Gray or them to me. "Now, as to telling Mr. Rea personally that I had not come out here to fight the Southern Pacific, probably I did say so. I have no recollection of the matter, but I'll give him the benefit of the doubt. I came here to manage the interests of the association accord-ing to my ability, and until I was here for a while studying up the local situa-tion to see its complexion, I had noth ing to say against the Southern Pacific; but when I, in the fulfillment of my dutles, saw that the railroad rates were too high and should be reduced as a matter of justice to the individual shipmatter of justice to the individual snip-per and the State as a whole, I com-menced to work to try and have them reduced. With the backing of the Traffic Association I am still at the work, and will continue to work to that end as long as the Traffic Association has faith in me as a man and an offi-

Fourth and Townsend-street officials the story about the dispatch to Stubbs, and several of them feel aggrieved that Mr. Rea, in his attempt to besmirch Mr. Leeds's character, should try to mix them up in the affair. Mr. Leeds's re-tiremement from the Gould system is an old story reflecting no discredit upon him, for he is today spoken of in the highest terms of praise as a man and an official by every man of note in the rail. official by every man of note in the rail-road world. Mr. Beckman is the first man in the entire country who has ever thought of trying to use that story in an effort to belittle him.

gives this interesting piece of news about Southern Pacific matters, particdarly pertinent, inasmuch as Mr. Huntington recently told a Times reporter that he was determined to sell all his railroad interests east of the Mississippi River. The telegram says that Maj. J. M. Edwards, vice-president of the Louisville, New Orleans and Fexas Railway Company, confirmed the statement sent out from New York that the Illinois Central Railway Company had called a meeting of the stockholders for June 18, to consider the policy of purchasing the Valley route. When Huntington was in Memphis, long ago, he said that he no intention of selling the that he considered it a most valroad, that he considered it a most variable property and that it was increasing in value every year. Mr. Huntington, however, has not by any means the control over the disposal of the road. While Mr. Huntington and his chief partners. Leland Stanford and Mr. Trocker, own 60 percent, of the stock Mr. Huntington owns only 15 per centres personally. It is understood that both stanford and Crocker are heartily in lavor of getting rid of the Louisville, New Orleans and Texas, so that they may attend more closely to their great interests west of the Mississippi represented mainly by the Southern Pacific toad. The proposed change would make Memphis the central point of an immense trunk line extending from Chicago to New Orleans, inasmuch as gaining control of the Louisville, New Orleans and Texas would immediately be followed by the construction of the Memphis and Clinton line. cable property and that it was increasbe followed by the construction of the Memphis and Clinton line.

CRIME AND CRIMINALS.

Sheriff Gibson Returns from Denver with Pickpocket Davis.

The Fellow Will Now Serve His Full Time in States Prison, and Will Then be Sent to Oregon to Do Time for Three Years.

Sheriff Gibson reached the city at 3 o'clock yesterday afternoon with the notorious pickpocket Davis in custody. It will be remembered that Davis is the man who has twice escaped the officers in this city during the past year. About a year ago he jumped $600 cash bail and made good his escape. About two months ago he returned and was getting ready to work the citrus fair, but Chief Glass nabbed him before he had been in the city an hour, and he was convicted of picking an old lady's pocket on his way from the depot to the botel. He was sentenced to two years in State's prison, but while the Court was yet passing sentence he made his escape from the courtroom. and was not again seen until a depot officer picked him up at Denver in the act of picking a woman's pocket. The Denver officers were not sure act of picking a woman's pocket.

The Denver officers were not sure that he was the same man, as he had shaved his mustache off and otherwise disguised himself. At the suggestion of Chief Glass one of Pinkerton's men visited the Denver jail and positively identified him.

Sheriff Gibson had considerable trouble with the fellow in bringing him back. Davis swore that he would never be brought back alive, but the Sheriff was too much for him, and Mr. Davis will now serve his full term in State's prison and will then be sent to Oregon, where a three years' sentence hangs over him.

Another Meeting of the Executive Com mittee Last Evening. The Fourth of July Executive Committee met last evening at the office of the Mayor. The principal business transacted was the appointment of Daniel M. Mc-Garry as grand marshal and the selection of the California Bank building as Victoria's Long Reign.

[Harper's Weekly.]
Victoria was 78 years old last week, and on June 20 she will have reigned fifty-five years. Her excellent, if not robust, health gives every promise that she will round out the century as Queen she will round out the century as Queen when the news was brought to her of her accession to the throne is interesting. The King died at Windsor, and messengers were at once dispatched to Kensington to inform her of the event. It was midnight when the sleeping Queen was awakened, and she came at the interesting the messan. Queen was awakened, and she came at once into the room to meet the messengers, attired in a white night gown, with a shawl thrown over her shoulders, her nightcap off and her feet in slippers. She was then a slender girl, pale, but pretty. Two years later she became the bride of Prince Albert.

The chairman then announced that the next thing in order was the presentation of the names of candidates for the Presidency. It was decided that the roll of States should be called and when Colorado was reached Senator Wolcott arose. Instantly the Blaine men burst into wild cheers, all doubt as to the presentation of Blaine's name being removed. Wolcott speke as fol-lows:

WOLCOTT NOMINATES BLAINE. WOLCOTT NOMINATES BLAINE.

Mr. Chairman and gentlemen of the convention: Republicans of the West sometimes differ with Republicans of the East as to what is wanted. On this occasion there is remarkable unanimity between the genuine Republicans of the West and the genuine Republicans of the East as to was in needed and his name is James G. Blaine.

When Wolcott pronounced the name one great universal howl went up from the audience. It was taken up by a large number of delegates, New York particularly being very confusive. Handkerchiefs and hats, as well as fans and umbrellas were tossed up and the noisy occupants of the galleries as-sisted in the uproar with their feet. The demonstration lasted sixty seconds. When it concluded, Wolcot continued:

The greatest American now living suffered defeat eight years ago because the party which he led and honored was torn by discord and because fraud triumphed. We meet today to undo that wrong and present our uncrowned leader a piedge of our unswerving devotion and assurance of a victory in November that will obliterate in his heart and ours the memory of past defeat.

The speaker was here greeted with loud and prolonged cheers, many delegates standing up and waving handker chiefs, flags, etc., and the audiency generally yelling loudly. He continued: chiefs, flags, etc., and the audience generally yelling loudly. He continued:

It is a matter of indifference to us who shall be chosen to lead the perifference thosts, but we trust they will again renominate their prophet of tariff reform, in order that we may demonstrate how short a life has the calumny that our country has gone back on its action of 1888, and that we have gone back on the policy of that date. There is a practical agreement among the delegates whose opinion certainly the delegates whose opinion should be followed, the delegates from the Republican States, as to who our leadershall be floud cheers, and that expression would today receive an almost unanimous voice were it not for a mistaken feeling among some that the bestowal of office is a personal affair. The welfare of our beloved party is of infinitely greater importance than the nomination or vindication of any one within its ranks, and when the relief States is called I believe there will be a rememberance of the fact that the obligations of office are to be repaid solely by faithful performance of its duties; that manhood and independence are not bartered amiding good men for the emoluments and honors of public station. This was londy cheered. Our candidate, Mr. Chairman, has never been President of the United States. He will be.

The speaker was again interrupted while the audience turned itself loose, many delegates applauding joudly. But if he has not yet occupied that high office he has, by devotion to, his party, made Republican Presidents possible; and omee he has, by devotion to, his party, made Republican Presidents possible; and he has guided two administrations with his sagacity and faithfulness. We are respected and honored abroad; we owe it to his statecraft. We are gathering the republics of all America in bonds. Of the closest lics of all America in bonds of the closest friendship; it is because: he devisid, planned, shaped the policy. Procity [Applause.]

There is no public measure since the days of reconstruction which tended to the advancement of our country with which his name is not identified; and when the history of this generation of the Republic shall be written his name will stand foremost among the statesmen. No official title or station can add to or detract from his fame, but we may at least let history record that all we had to give we gave with loving, loyal hearts. The best gifts of the world are not to those who seek them. [Applause.] Our votes are to be cast for one who is almost every Republican's candidate except his own. [Applause.] For my part I rejoice at the opportunity given me to cast my vote for the nominee who seeks everything for his country, nothing for himself. [Cheers.] And the same devotion to the Nation's welfare which has guided him in the his public life for nearly a generation insufes his acceptance of any duty which this convention may impose upon him. [Applause.] For many months there has been apprenancion in the public mind respecting his health and strength. It is gratifying to be able to state that the fears which moved usewer groundless. For our country's sake and his own we could wish he were again the young ardent leader whose light fladed in countless battles; that his youth could be renewed like the eagle's. [Cheera.] Experience, however, Mr. Chairman, comes only with ripening years, and though time 'has tinged his hair with white. He sains unconquerable will and lofty patriotem still dominates his vision Years of straggle in the public service have left their impress, but he still stands.

white the same unconquerable will and lofty patriotem still dominates his vision Years of straggle in the public service have left their impress, but he still stands, to us who love him, the embodiment of all that is brightest and best in American statesmanship prolonged cheers and applause, laukmellowed, brightened by the creeping nours of time, we thank God he is still ably equipped to give the people of these State-an administration which shall not only profect our own citirens, but looking beyond the confines of our borders shall embrice the well-being of all Americans. [Prolonged cheers.]

And so, Mr Chairman, in the hour when victory is at hand, we turn to the intrepid leader who so shaped this party's policy, which lifted it aboye the danger of further defeat, and to those of us who belong to the younger element of the party, who are now content to follow, and who ask only to bear their sharmof burden and heat of the day, he stands our ideal, our inspiration, his name engraved on all our hearts in living letters timet shall never fade; brave and great there is not one Republican who will not follow where he leads. [Applause-With loving faith, and trusting that Providence will long spare him to the populace whose grateful homage he has earned, and whose affectionate devotion he possesses,

At the conclusion of Wolcott's speech the call of States was resumed, and when Indiana was reached the vener-able Richard W. Thempson, ex-Secre-tary of the Nava rose to nominate Harrison.

Harrison.
THOMPSON'S SPEECE OF MINATING HARRISON.
In response to devands he took the platform. When he skilfully alluded to Wolcott's speech by saying that the "candidate whom he would name did not seek elevation by detracting from any other great Republican," the sentiment elicited theers of approval

Thompson's speech was as follows:

Mr. Chairman and gentlemen of the convention: I do not intend to make a speech. propose to make a pomination for the Presidency which shall strike propose to make a nomination for the Presidency which shall strike sympathy in overy true Republican heart. I propose to nominate for President of the United States a man who does not seek elevation by detracting from any other great Republican in the Republican party. [Applause.] I do not propose, however, to defend the history of his life before this convention, because that has been done in words of burning, breathing eloquence which cannot be suppressed in this or any other country in the world. [Applause.] Therefore, with these words of praise, it nominate to this convention for President of the United States, the warrior-statesman, Benjamin Harrison of Indiana.

A counter demonstration, that so far as number of delegates was concerned, exceeded the Blaine greeting, greeted Thompson's speech. It was nearly two minutes before the Harrison cheers subsided.

The afflor States was resumed. When Michigh was reached there was a breathers pause, but there was no response from the Michigan delegation. What's the matter with Alger?"

He is intensely Republican as he is intensely American. The length of the hemisphere attests the breadth and scope of his statesmanship, Minnesota, with loyal and patriotic purpose, shakes the hand of every sister state and seconds the nomination of James State and seconds the nomination of James ate and seconds the nomination of Jame

At the close of the eloquent speech of Eustis there was prolonged applause, which subsided, however, in a few min-ntes and the business of the convention was about to proceed when Mrs. Carson Lake of New York, who was seated or Lake of New York, who was seated on the rear of the platform with Mr. and Mrs. Charles Emery Smith of Phila-delphia, Mrs. R. G. Hitt, wife of Con-gressman Hitt of Illinois, and Miss Phelips, daughter—of William Walter Phelps, arose and innocently waved small silk flag. It had a magic effect smail slik hag. It had a magic effect upon the vast multitude and seemed to electrify the concourse of people. Mr. and Mrs. Judge Thurston of Omaha, who occupied seats on the opposite side of the hall, led the enthusiasm in a graceful flourish of a white umbrella earing the inscription, "James G.

New York was then called and Depew abbe in the midst of a mighty cheer.
Historical Harrison's nomination in Hiseconded Harrison the following speech:

DEPEW SECONDS HARRISON. The President and gentlemen of the conven-tions. It is a peculiarity of Republican Na-tional conventions that each one of them has a distinct and interesting history. We are been to meet conditions and solve prob-lements in make this gathering not only lem which make this gathering not only no exception to the rule, but substantially a new departure. That there should be strong convictions and their earnest expression, as to preferences and policies is characteristic of the right of individual judgingsh which is the fundamental principle of republicanism. There have been ocpression, as to preferences and policies is characteristic of the right of individual Judgingal which is the rundamental principle of republicanism. There have been occasions when the result was so sure that delegates could freely indulge in the charming privilege of favoritism and friendivin, but the situation witch now confronts us demands the exercise of dispassion, judgment, and our best thought and experience. We cannot venture on uncertain ground or encounter obstacles pidsed, in our pathway. Our enemy is now divided, but the hope of the possession of power once more will make it in the final battle, more aggressive, determined and unscrupulous than ever. It starts with fitten States secure without effort, by processes which are a travesty upon popular government, and if continued long enough will paralyze institutions founded upon popular suffrage. It has to win four more States in a fair fight—States which in the vocabulary of politics are denominated doubtful. The Republican party must appeal to the conscience and judgment of the individual voter in every State in the Union. This is in accordance with the principles upon which it was founded and the objects for which it contends. It has accepted this issue before and fought with extraor tharry continuance of success. The contitions of Republican victory from 1860 to 1880 were created by Abraham Manolin and Ulysses S. Grant. They were: That the saved Republic should be run by its saviors; the emancipation of the States and reconstruction of States; the reception of those who had fought to destroy the Republic back into the fold, without penalties or punishments and to an evual share with those who had fought to destroy the Republic back into the fold, without penalties or punishments and to an evual share with those who had fought to destroy the Republic back into the fold, without penalties or punishments and to an evual share with those who had fought to destroy the Republic aparty to retain the confidence of the people. But from the bodies of the peo history the partissues and brought us face to face with what Democracy, its professions and its proactices, mean today. The great names which have adorned the roll of Republican strictmen and soldiers are still potent and popular. The great measures of the Republican party are still the best party history of the country. The unequalted and unexampled story of republicanism in its progress and achievements stands unique in the record of parties in governments which are free.

But we live in practical times, facing practical issues which affect business, wages, labor and prosperity. The campaign will be won or lost, not upon the bad record of James K. Poik, or of Franklin Pierce or James Buchanan; not upon the good record of Lincoln or Grant or Arthur or Hayes or Gardeld. It will be won or lost upon politics, foreign and domestic issues, industrial measures and the administrative acts of the administration of Benjamin Harrison. Whoever receives the nomination of this the administration of Benjamin Harrison. Whoever receives the nomination of this convention will run upon the judgment of the people as to whether they have been more prosperous and more happy; whether the country has been in better condition at home and stood more knonroally abroad under these last four years of Harrison and a Republican administration than during the preceding four years of Cleveland and a Democratic government.

Not since Thomas Jefferson has any adbemocratic government.

Not since Thomas Jefferson has any administration been called upon to face and solve so many or such diment problems as those which have been exigent in our conditions. No administration since the organization of the Government has ever met dimentices better or more to the satisfaction of the American people. Chile has been taught that no matter how small an antagonist no community can, with safety, insult the larg or murder American sailors. Germany and England have learned in Samoa that the United States has become suit the flag or murder American sailors. Germany and England have learned in Samoa that the United States has become one of the powers of the world, and no matter how mighty the adversary, at every sacriface American honor will be maintained. The Bering Sea question, which was an insurmountable obstacle in the diplomacy of Cleveland and Bayard, has been settled upon a basis which has sustained the American position, until arbitration shall have determined our rights. The dollar of the country has been placed and kept on the standard of commercial nations, and a convention has been agreed upon with foreign governments which by making bimetallism the policy of all nations may successfully solve all our financial problems. The tariff, tinkered with and trified with to the serious disturbance of trade and disaster to hustness since the days of Washing. The tariff, tinkered with and trined with to the serious disturbance of trade and disaster to business since the days of Washington, has been courageously embodied into a code which has preserved the principle of protection to American industries. To it has been addled a beneficent policy, supplemented by beneficial treaties and wise diplomacy, which has opened to our farmers and manufacturers the markets of other countries. The navy has been builded upon lines which will protect American citizens and American interests and the American diag all over the world. The public debt has been reduced and maturing boods have been paid off. The public credit has been maintained and the burdens of taxation have been lightened. Two dens of taxation have been indired and the but dens of taxation have been lightened. Tw hundred millions in currency has bee added to the people's money without dis turbance of exchanges. Unexampled pro-perity has crowned wise laws and a wis administration. administration.

The main question which divides us is, to whom does the credit of all this belong? Orators may stand upon this platform, more able and more eloquent than I, who will paint in more brilliant colors, but they cannot put in more earnest thought the affection and admiration of Republicans for our distinguished Secretary of State. I yield to no Republican, no matter from what State he halis, in admiration and respect for John Sherman, for Gov. McKinley, for Thomas B. Reed, for Iowa's great son, for the favorites of Illinois, Wisconsin and Michigan; but when I am told that the credit for the brilliant diplomacy of this administration belongs exclusively to the Secretary of State, for the administration of its.

of State, for the administration of its finances to the Secretary of the Treasury for the construction of its ships to the Secretary of the the Secretary of the Navy, for the introduction of American pork in Europe to the Secretary of Agriculture; for the settlement, so far at it is settled, of the currency question to Senator John Sherman; for the formulation of tariff laws to sion. McKinley: for the re Senator John Sherman; for the formulation of tariff laws to Gov. McKinley; for the removal of the restrictions placed by foreign name of the restrictions placed by foreign pork to our ministers at Paris and Berlin. I am tempted to seriously inquire, who, during the last four years, has been President of the United States, anyhow? Casar when he wrote those Commentaries which were the history of the conquests of Europe when he wrote those Commentaries which were the history of the conquests of Europe under his leadership, modestly took the position of Æneas when he said "They are a narrative of events, the whole of which I saw and part of which I was." Gen. Thomas, as the rock of Chickamauga, occuples a place in our history with Leonidas among the Greeks, except that he succeeded while Leonidas failed. The fight of Joe Hooker above the clouds was the poetry of battle. The resistless rush of Sheridan and his steed down the Valley of the Shenandoah is an epic of our civil. war. The march of Sherman from Atlanta to the sea is a supreme triumph of gallantry and strategy. It detracts nothing from the splendor of the fame or the merits of the deeds of his lieutenants to say that having strategy. It detracts nothing from the spiendor of the fame or the merits of the deeds of his lieutenants to say that having selected them with marveious sagacity and discretion, Grant still remained supreme commander of the national army. All proposed acts of any administration, before they are formulated, are passed upon in Cabinet council, and measures and suggestions of the ablest secretaries would have failed with a lesser President: but, for the great good of the country and benefit of the Republican party, they have succeeded because of the suggestive mind, indomitable courage, intelligent appreciation of situations and grand magnanimity of Benjamin Harrison. It is an undisputed fact that during the few months when both the Secretary of State and Secretary of the reasury were ill, the President personally assumed the duties of the State Department and of the Treasury Department, and both with equal success. The Secretary of State, in accepting his portfolio under President Garfield, wrote: "Your administration must be made brilliantly successful and strong in the confidence and pride of and strong in the confidence and pride of the people; not at all diverting its ener-gies for reelection and yet compelling that result by the logic of events, and by the imperious necessities of the situation." Garfield fell before the bullet of an assas-sin, and Blaine retired to private life. Gen. Harrison invited him to take up that unfin-shed diplomatic career where its threads had been so tragically broken. He en-tered the Cabinet. He resumed his work had been so tragically broken. He en-tered the Cabluet. He resumed his work and has won a higher place in our history. The prophecy he made for Garfield has been superbly fulfilled by Harrison. In the language of Blaine, Harrison has compelled reflection by "the logic of events and the imperious necessities of the situation." The man who is nominated here today, to who must carry a certain well-known

The man who is nominated here today, to win, must carry a certain well-known number of doubtful/States. Patrick Henry, in the convention which started rolling the ball of independence of the colonies from Great Britain, said: "I have but one lamp by which my feet are guided, and that is the lamp of experience. I know of no way of judging of the future but by the past." New York was carried in 1880 by Garneld, and in every innovatant election since that of judging of the future but by the past."
New York was carried in 1880 by Garfield, and in every important election since that time we have done our best. We have put forward the ablest, most popular, most brilliant leaders for Governor and State ofmeers to suffer constant defeat. The only light which illumines with the sun of hope the dark record of those twelve years is the fact that in 1888 the State of New York was triumphantly carried by President Harrison. He carried it then as a gallant soldier, wise Senator, a statesman who in apired confidence by his public utterances in daily speeches from the commencement of the canvass to the close. He still has all these claims, and in addition an administration beyond criticism, and rich with the elements of popularity with which to carry New York again. Ancestry helps in the old world and handicaps in the new. There is but one distinguished example of a son first overcoming the limitations imposed by the preeminent time of the father, and then rising above it, and that was when the poclaration of Independence, and another who saved the Northwest from savagery and gave it to civilization, and who was also President of the United States, the poor and unknown lawyer of Indiana has risen by his unaided efforts to such distinction as lawyer, orator, soldier, statesman and President that he reflects more credit upon his ancestors than they have devolved upon him, and presents an Ameriand President that he reflects more credit upon his ancestors than they have devolved upon him, and presents an American history the parallel of the younger Pitt, the grand record of his wise and popular administration, by the strength gained in frequent contact with the people in wonderfully versatile and felicitous speeches, by the claims of pure life in public, and in the simplicity of the typical American home. I nominate Benjamin Harrison.

Depew's reference to McKinley caused a great demoistration all over the hall. The audience paid close attention to the great New Yorker, cheering the various sentiments and bursting out afresh when he mentioned Harrison's name. When Depew said, "Who will be given the credit for the great acts of this administration?" some one acts of this administration?" some one in the audience called out, "Blaine!"

[Great applause.]
At the conclusion of Depew's speech At the conclusion of Depew's speech a banner with, Harrison's portrait was brought on the platform, causing a great demonstration all over the hall. This was followed by a Blaine banner, brought on the floor. There was great brought on the floor. There was great excitement and cheering. Both banners were carried around the hall. The demonstration for both was so mingled that it was impossible to separate them. Red, white and blue plumes were waved in various parts of the hall amid great noise and confusion. The banners were removed and sion. The banners were removed and the cheering of the Harrison men was renewed. A portrait of McKinley was carried about the hall. Great noise and confusion and great cheering for Blaine and Harrison followed, the latter getting the handly of the combined. ter getting the benefit of the combined

The manifestation was most sensational. Its prolonged intensity and en-durance probably equaled anything ever seen in a convention. At twenty-three minutes after the commencement of the demonstration the band began to play, but the roar came again and the stamping was renewed. McKinley be-gan to rap with the gavel for order, and finally the storm spent itself at the end of thirty-one minutes.

w. E. Matteson, colored delegate from Mississippi, seconded the nomination of "the greatest citizen of the world, the man so great that no one is jealous of him, the greatest of Americans, greatest living Republican—James G. Blaine."

WARNER MILLER SECONDS BLAINE. When the hubbub had subsided the chairman recognized ex-Senator War-ner Miller of New York. The speech of the great Nicaragua Canal advocate in seconding Blaine's nomination was brief. His words for harmony were well received. His statement that he and his friends had no word of detraction for Harrison and that the nominee of the convention would receive the support of all Republicans provoked

Another colored orator gained the platform and was coldly received until a sarcastic reference was made to the a sarcastic reference was made to the shouting of the people in the gallaries for Blaine, when he brought down the house by the exclamation: "Thank God, the people in the gallery have a vote at the poils!" when Wisconsin was called ex-Sena tor Spooner came forward amid a great demonstration to second the nomina-tion of Harrison. His speech was as follows: SENATOR SPOONER'S SPEECH

Mr. President and gentlemen of the conven-tion: The preliminaries are settled and it is a relief that we are at last face to face with the great duty which we came hither to perform. That the action of this body, composed of representative men, who love the Republican party and seek to promote its success for its record and its principles will be deliberate, thoughtful and patriotic and such as to secure for it the approval of those who sent us here, cannot well be doubted. National Republican conventions have not been accustomed to make mis takes. That which met at Chicago in 1882 made no mistake when it entrusted the power, responsibility and leadership to Benjamin Harrison of Indiana, and Benjamin Harrison made no mistakes. He quickly proved himself an ideal candidate when lead to the control of t is a relief that we are at last face to tace for spot or blemish. with renewed vigor and strength and interrupdly led it to victory.

His friends bring his name into this convention proudly conscious that the record which he has made need not be supple mented by words of advocacy. He has bees from the first day of his inauguration what the people elected him to be—President of the United States. He has given to the country an administration which for ability, efficiency, purity and patriotism challenges, without fear of comparison, any which has preceded since the foundation of the Government. He has been "free from variableness or the shadow of turning" is his devotion to the principles of the Republican party and to the redemption of the pledges made by if to the people. He has tries and the interests of American wage-workers, and placed with alacrity the seal or approval upon the great Tariff Bill of the Fifty-first Congress, which has outridder the flood of misrepresentation which swep over it, as did the ark in the deluge of old and now rests upon a foundation as solid a: Mr. Array, He chambioned and promote over it, as did the ark in the deluge of old and now rests upon a foundation as solid a: Mt. Nor did he forget or disregard the solemn pledge of the Republican party that "every citizen, rich or poor, native of foreign born, white or black," is entitled at every public election to cast one free ballo and to have that ballot honestly counted and faithfully returned. AMUSEMENTS TONIGHT. AT THE OPERAHOUSE-Blue Jeans.

ELECTRIC motors have been introduced at Blackburn, England, to operate the looms. Wait until we get the Niagara River at work grinding out electricity and we may have the same kind of weaving in this country.

THE Secretary of the Treasury has very properly forbidden the landing at the San Francisco quarantine station of Chinamen destined for Honolulu who have been denied admission on account of disease. The United States has bet ter business in hand than maintaining quarantine for the Sandwich Islands.

THE San Francisco Produce Exchange has issued a bulletin on the flour and grain remaining in the State on June 1, which gives the total amounts as fol lows: Flour, 120,517 barrels; wheat, 2,100,149 centals; barley, 913,049 centals; oats, 48,786 centals; beans, 128,182 sacks; corn, 92,837 centals; rye, 5831 centals. This is a much larger supply in the aggregate than was on hand at the same season of the year. Last year on June 1 the supply was 121,166 barrels of flour, 1,626,562 centals of wheat 352,882 centals of barley, 45,074 centals of oats, 46,682-sacks of beans. 78,738 centals of corn and 14,136 centals of rye.

The Toronto Irish Canadian is out for annexation. It is tired of what it calls the debts, rags and tatters of colonialism This is its picture of the results of the admission of Canada into the American Union:

Farm lands would be bound up, our mine be opened, our shipping vastly increased vast canals constructed, and, most priceles of all treasures, our boys and girls would find here at home a field for their enter find here at home a field for their enter-prise and labor, instead of flocking, as they are now doing, to the other side. We would have no creature of some English noble family foisted upon us to strut about as a representative of European sovereighty at a big cost to Canadian taxpayers. While pulpits and platforms may ring with senile ravings of royalty, (the hour of our colonist colitician and tuff-hunter is fast drawing olitician and tuft-hunter is fast drawing

ORANGE county is rapidly forging to the lead as a dairving section. A creamery at Westminster utilizes the milk from 430 cows. The weekly output is 1500 pounds of butter from 31,200 of milk. The capacity of the creamery is twice its present output, and the business is being increased as rapidly as possible. A creamery at Newport is also doing a good business. The Santa Ana Blade observes that the butter product of Orange county is a considerable revenue, and is growing in importance. It is safe to is as it should be, and gives men of consay that the butter product of the 4000 pounds per amounts to week. The annual sales of butter are estimated to be nearly 208,000 pounds equal to nearly $83,000 peryear. The butter product of Santa Ana and suburbs finds a ready market in Santa Ana, Los Angeles and San Diego.

THE recent decision that boards of supervisors have no authority to employ extra deputies for county officers is putting some counties to their stumps to provide a way of transacting extra business. Siskyou is talking of charging each voter who registers 10 cents and thus securing funds to pay for compiling the great register. probability is, however, that this would be as unconstitutional as the former method. It is fortunate that the new decision does not apply to assessor's offices. It would be utterly impossible to make assessments without extra deputies, and if a sufficient force for this purpose had to be provided and carried on the rolls the whole year it would be a great waste of public funds. These legal gentlemen of hairsplitting proclivities precipitate some awkward situations occasionally.

This is a contemptible way of trying to do business-by running down the produce of some other nortion of the State-but unfortunately this a method fre quently resorted to by the up-country merchants. The meanest thing about it is the utter falsity of the assertion. The potatoes grown by the farmers of sacramento Valley, which has been It is and will be a matter of deep restooded this year are, of course, not watery, but are "long keepers," whereas those produced in the dry, warm soil of Southern California where we have had only a moderate rainfall; are "watery" and begin to rot about The statement on its face is work of electing the candidate, if he so preposterous that is needs no further is to be elected

M'COMAS SECONDS HARRISON. Hon, Lewis E. McComas of Maryland in seconding the nomination of Harri-

The Republicans of the South cast a million and a half votes for Harrison at the last election. In the eight States of the border in the South there were a million votes then; there are more now, for the doubtful States—at least two of them—will cast their electoral vote for the Republican candidates. The Southern Republican votes in the last Congress placed the gavel in Tom Reed's hands, added two young Republican States, helped to keep the people's money sound, secured the McKinley tariff blessings and the benefits of protection and reciprocity.

The speaker eulogized Harrison and his administration. He declared that four years ago he had conquered Cleveland and since then his strength has been increaded by great achievements and he will go forth to conquer Cleveland once more. He said:

They are about to send him out to battle against the profits of trade. The Republican convention should send forth the great President of this glorious administration with the shield of protection, the sword of reciprocity the flag made glorious by the victories in Bering Sea and Italy.

The Democrats nominated Cleveland twice. We may wisely nominate Harrison twice. The Republican party never renominated a President it did not reelect.

A BALLOT TAKEN.

The President Renominated -- Sensational McKinley-Foraker Episode.

Minneapolis (Minn.,) June 10.—[By the Associated Press. | At the conclu sion of the call of States, ex-Gov. Sew ell of New Jersey, moved that the convention proceed to ballot. The motion prevailed and in the intense suspense following, the chairmen of the delega-tion of the various States proceeded to solution delegations preparatory to responding to roll call. It was ordered that delegates from Indian Territory and Alaska be entitled to vote on the Bresidential ballot. Alabama was the first State called, and responded with 15 votes for Harrison, 7 for McKinley.

A member of the California delega-tion called for a poll of that State, which was officered by the Chair with the following result: De Young, Blaine; Charles N. Felton, Harrison; Blaine; Chattes N. Felton, Harrison; E. F. Spence, Harrison; N. D. Rideout, Harrison; D. T. Cole, Harrison; E. V. Spencer, Harrison; J. F. Kidder, Blaine; E. J. Rhodes, Blaine; Eli Dennison, Blaine; R. D. Robbins, Blaine; E. S. Pillsbury, Harrison; J. S. Spear, Jr., McKinley; O. A. Hate. Blaine; George A. Knight, Blaine; E. P. Johnson, Harrison, R. E. Jack, Blaine; R. W. Button, Harrison. The Chair announced as the result of the California poll, Harrison, 7; Blaine, 9; McKinley, 1. Harrison, 7; Blaine, 9; McKinley.

tharrison. 7; Blaine, 9; McKinley 1.

Deafening cheers greeted the entrange of the distinguished Ohio Governor into the Presidential contest.

When Ohio was reached, there occurred the most dramatic incident ever witnessed in a national convention, that of a Presidential candidate challenging the legality of a vote cast for him by his own State. "Ohio gives 2 votes for Harrison, 4+ votes for McKinley," said ex-Gov Foraker, and the pandemonium of enthusiasm that greeted the announcement, showed that Harrison had lost 2 votes in Ohio After the cheering had ceased McKinley arose and in a clear voice, said: "I challenge the vote of the State of Ohio. I am a delegate from that State."

A M'KINLEY-FORAKER SPISODE After a breathless pages Foraker rose and said: "But you have been retired from this delegation," Mr. Chair man, by your election to the chairman ship of this convention. "Your alternate has talen your placegand we holonger know you as a member of the Onio delegation."

The generous action of Feraker toward the man who, but recently, had been identified with the opposition faction in Ohio, evoked the better impulses of the vast audience and resulted in loud applause.

"The chair overrules the point of order," said McKinley. "and asks the secretary of the convention of call the roll." This called forth another ovation from the Harrison delegates in admiration of Mckinley's loyal support to the President.

to the President.

The secretary of the egovention called the first name on the Ohio list, that of William McKinley, July 11 vote for Benjamin Harrison," said the great American protectionist, and the great iffying cheers which resounded through the hall were quieted only when the object of all this enthusiasn waved the gavel to restore order.

object of all this enthusiasn waved the gavel to restore order.

"Joseph B. Foraker," shouted the clerk, and there was a breathless suspense. "William McKinley," said the ex-Govenor, and this time it was the flery Foraker, who for loyalty to the Governor of his State, deserved the plaudits of the multitude.

After the individual roll of States had been finished it was discovered that on the first ballot McKinley's alternate had actually voted for Harrison in obedience to a previous request, although the latter doubtless supposed he had discharged this injunction.

When the State of Pennsylvania was called a great surprise greeted the convention. The various delegates who, called a great surprise greeted the convention. The various delegates who, up to this time, had apparently been docile under the leadership of Senator-Quay, revolted, and when the result was announced it was shown that Harrison had ten more votes from the State than had been expected. The Harrison people cheered tumultuously also when South Dakota followed with a solid vote for Harrison and a little later. Taxas for Harrison, and a little later Texas HARRISON RENOMINATED.

Then it was apparent that the President would certainly be renominated. and the enthusiasm provoked by his followers was unrivaled by any previous incident of the day. Men cheered until they were exhausted, and the throwing of hats, waving of umbrellas and banners added to the pandemonium of the scene. The band caught the inspiration of the occasion and burst forth in a triumphant blast. The scene was one where feminine charms and manly a triumphant biast. The scene was one where feminine charms and manly vigor blended together in a triumphant ovation to the man who had now become the idol of the hour.

In the midst of this excitement Chairman McKinley called o'Elliot F. Shepard to the chair, and, before a dozen people were aware of it, was on the floor clam-oring for recognition. When order was restored McKinley said: "Mr. Chair-man and gentlemen of the convention: I move that the rules be suspended and that Benjamin Harrison be nominated for President of the United States by acclamation."

The Harrison people gave a wild, hysterical cheer of approval, but there were cries of "No. no.! Rell call!"

were cries of "No; no! Roll call!" from Blaine and McKinley delegates in various parts of the hall. An enthusivarious parts of the hall. An enthusi-astic Blaine man made the point of order that the motion of McKinley was order that the motion of McKinley was not in order. "I desire to say." said McKinley, that you can suspend any rule you have by a two-thirds majority, and let us do so now." The Blaine and McKinley people refused to yield. Chairman Pro Tem. Shepard started to put the motion, but his voice could not be heard. be heard.

At this juncture various gentlemen surrounded McKinley, and after a hurried conference the latter again took the platform and said: "Mr. Chairman, there are States that have not been reached which desire to record their votes, and I understand that they will record their votes in the direction of my motion. In order to enable them to do so I therefore withdraw motion." [Pro-

onged applause. | Roll call was continued with a steady gain for Harrison and it was obvious that he was nominated by a considerable majority, but it required some cime for the clerks to foot up the results. for the clerks to foot up the results.

During the interval McKinley had again taken the chair and half an hour later asked the clerks to announce the result of the roll call.

MADE UNANIMOUS.

"The whole number of votes," said a clerk, "is 904½; number necessary to a choice, 453. Benjamin Harrison received 585 1-6 votes, James G. Blaine 1821-6, William McKinley 182, Robert Lincoln 1 vote, Thomas B. Reed 4 votes." [Applause.]

"Benjamin Harrison baving received the majority of all the votes cast," said Chairman McKinley, "is the nominee of this convention. Shall the nomination be made unanimous?"

e made unanimous?"

"All in favor of making it unanimous say aye," said the chairman. There was a storm of ayes. "It is unanimous," said the chairman, and once more the convention gave itself over to one of those scenes of enthusiasm which had been so familiar to the proceedings of the day.

Lincoln ... The Chairman Ex-Senator Ingalls of Kansas has sent to the desk a resolution which he asks unanimous consent to pass and I think it ought to pass.

The resolution was read as follows:

Resolved, that the secretary of the convention prepare a full report of the National Republican Conventions of 1856, 1860 and 1864 and cause the same to be sold at the cost of printing, and that a similar arrangement shall be made for the publication of the proceedings of this convention.

The convention then adjourned till 8

THE TICKET COMPLETED

Whitelaw Reid of New York Nominated for Vice-President, MINNEAPOLIS (Minn...) June 10.—[By the Associated Press. | The evening session of the convention was called to order by Chairman McKinley, who nounced that the order of business was the presentation of candidates for Vice-President of the United States.

The secretary called the roll, and when the State of New York was reached Senator O'Connor was recogreached Senator O'Connor was recognized by the Chair. He said:

I was designated by the New York delegation to present, the name of a distinguished citizen of New York for Vice-President. We want to assure you that in our opposition to the nomination of the successful candidate there was nothing of a personal nature, and we now recognize the duty of every Republican to bow loyally to the judgment of this convention. We be aided in the great struggle it will have to make in order to place that State in the Republican column, and I believe. The gentleman whom I shall name will aid us materially in accomplishing that purpose. Therefore, in behalf of the New York delegation, I place in nomination for Vice-President of the United States Hon. White-law Reid. [Applause.] The nomination was seconded by Hon.

The nomination was seconded by Hon. Horace Porter of New York. He said:
The character and services of Whitelaw Reid will give assurance that he will carry out the policy of the party. He is strong in the affections of his fellow-citizens, and will command the unqualified respect of people of the civilized globe. He is prominently today New York's favorite son. He is the legitimate and worthy successor to that great creator of modern journalism, Horace Greeley. He has served as minister from the oldest republic of the New World to the newest republic of the Old World. He has solved successfully the most complicated and intricate questions that have arisen in diplomacy between the two countries. Throughout the various complicated diplomatic transactions he retained the absolute confidence of his own Government and secured the respect of the French government to which he was accredited. There is no blot on his escutcheon. Give us Ried and his name and services will do more than any other in assisting in the campaign. Give us him and we will give you victory in November.

Gov. Buckley of Connecticut also seconded the nomination.

The chairman then asked that the nomination of Reid be made by acclanomination of Reid be made by acclamation. The motion was seconded.

J. L. Little of Tennessee said that in obedience to the request of the Tennessee delegation he desired to make a nomination. The chairman recognized the gentleman from Tennessee. Mr. Little said:

Under ordinary circumstances we who live in the South don't have much to say about the nomination of candidates for President and Vice-President. We prefer President and Vice-President. We prefer rather to let you gentlemen who live in Re-publican States make the nominations and publican States make the nominations and do what we can to help you elect them. But Tennessee today feels that she has a right to ask the convention to nominate a man for Vice-President who is as intensely American as any American who breathes the air upon the American Continent; a man who has demonstrated to the American people ability at all times and under all circumstances to make American citizenship respected; a man who is able to and who circumstances to make American citizenship respected; a man who is able to and who did stop the Democratic party in the halls of the American Congress from fillustering; and who succeeded in getting the business of the Government done; a man who believes that citizenship in Tennessee or Louisiana is entitled to the same protection it has in New York or Connecticut. Tennessee, Mr. Chairman, places in nomination for Vice-President of the United States one of the grandest characters in American politics, Thomas B. Reed of Maine. [Applause.]

The Chairman. Are there further nominations? [Cries of "No, No! Question."]

The Chairman. Shall we, by unanimous consent, dispense with the further call of States? [Cries of "Yes" and Littlefield of Maine asked the delegates of the convention to decline to cast their votes for Reed until they could be assured that the gentiemen have authority to present his name to the convention. Gen. Littlefield said it was the opinion of the Maine delegation that Reed would decline the nomination if tendered him. Mr. Settle and Mr. Louthan both said they were not acquainted with Reed, and had no authority for placing his name before authority for placing his name before the convention, but did so at the request of the Tennessee delegation, and as they considered, they were voicing the sentiment of the country. Mr. Louthan then formally withdrew Reed's name. Kearney of Iowa moved to suspend the rules and make the nomination of Women Tyrants.

When the wife has a box seat and holds the reins, the world knows pretty well what the condition of things really is. Despising the man whose place she has usurped, she is at no pains to conceal her contempt. She opposes him sharply; contradicts him flatly; looks him down at his own table, and lets both him and the world see that she reboth him and the world see that she re-gards him as a fool not worth the trouble of conciliating, or the effort involved in reasoning with. She interferes with his every action; forbids him to smoke; allowances his wine; sends him out or keeps him at home, as she thinks best; despises his pursuits, and when she can, takes them from him as she would take their toys from her children. His pet dog she banishes; his favorite books she puts away; if he is fond of gardening, she digs up and turns over his flower-beds for a tennis ground; if he is an adept at tennis, she breaks up the court to make a rose garden. Her tyranny is like a Nasmyth hammer, and finds nothing too large or too small for its manipulation. The whole family suffer enably with the unfortunate has its manipulation. The whole family suffer equally with the unfortunate hus-band. Whenever she appears she brings with her both tyranny and inter-ference. Her children are trained and managed till they have not a spark of naturalness or spontaneity left in them. In whatever they are doing, she must interfere and ordain. At croquet she tells them where to send the ball; at tennis she makes them nervous by shouting out unfriendly commentaries on their play; at the piano she objects to their fingering, and wishes to alter their light and shade; at the easel she bids them scrumble up the whole picture. their light and shade; at the easel she bids them scrumble up the whole picture as it stands and begin it anew on her lines. She is always changing her servants, with whose work and methods she interferes until they lose their patience—when either they are impernent and are discharged on the spot; or disheartened and discharge themselves. She is the scourge of the family. The tyranny of a woman is to the full as ill to bear as the tyranny of a man, and to bear as the tyranny of a man, and perhaps it is more annoying because more incessant. ore incessant.

THE ONLY BASIS

Upon which we solicit trade is: If you buy any article in this house and you are not perfectly satisfied in every way with your purchase bring the goods back and get your money. We don't solicit trade upon any other basis than the squarest methods known to legitimate merchandizing. We have a number of well-known specialties that no other house handles. Among them the Royal Worcester Corset. They are sold upon their merits only. If you buy a Royal Worcester Corset and wear them from one to three weeks and feel that they are not what you want, bring them back and we will give you another Royal Worcester in a different shape and fit them to you perfectly. We don't want any dissatisfaction—will not have it where we have a chance to remedy it. We close Saturday nights; we give samples freely. The trade that visits the house receives every attention; they are waited upon in a perfect manner. Every employee in this house is given a vacation; they are paid full time in advance. We are doing business upon a basis above criticism—the broadest, most liberal of any in this city. The business of this house is fully one-third larger than one year ago. Can't you indorse our methods by at least taking particular notice of the way you are waited upon in this house; more freedom in showing goods; more freedom in showing samples; the same attention to a looker as to a buyer; civilty is the foundation, courtesy is the tower of strength. An advertiser that fails to carry out every idea advanced in an advertisement is doing more harm than he does good. Better save the money rather than pay it out to disappoint a customer. We cannot afford to disappoint you; we cannot afford to offer special in-ducements to city trade on a Saturday night and refuse country trade the same goods at the same price during the We value the country trade as well as we do the city trade; they are entitled to the same goods at the same price. How does the Farmers' Alliance like that style? One price to all.

AFTER THE FIGHT.

What the Leaders Say-Blaine Men Disappointed But Not Bitter.

MINNEAPOLIS (Minn.,) June 10.—[By the Associated Press.] The battle has been fought and the administration of Harrison sustained by the Republican party in his nomination for President for a second term. Every resource known to political warfare was brought to bear by the leaders of the opposition to defeat the President's renomination, but his friends held steadfast to the end. The name of Blaine on every oc-casion called forth a vast amount of enthusiasm, but the result demonstrated that a new era has arrived in national conventions, and the preferences of delegates will no longer be swayed by the manifestations of cheering thousands in the galleries. At no time did the name of President Harrison evoke the name of President Harrison evoke the name of President Harrison evoke the enthusiasm that was called forth by the names of Blaine and McKinley.

Half a dozen conferences were held in the early hours by the anti-administration leaders to determine what was best to be done. The proceedings of the convention show the result of these conferences. It was determined to keep Blaine in the field until the spirit of the convention had been obtained, and then endeavor by a skilful move to stampede the convention and nominate stampede the convention and nominate McKinley. Pennsylvania was the first State to turn aside against the compro-mise ushered forth by the almost solid vote of the State of Ohio and by Matt Quay, as in years gone by a prominent figure in Republican politics. The exact effect which Harrison's omination is to have upon the party will not be known until the passions of men have subsided. There is a great ical of bitterness tonight and probably much of this will live during the campaign, but whether it will be sufficient. to endanger the success of the Republi-

New York, June 10.—The nomination of Harrison and Reid created a variety of sentiment in this city. M. M. Estee of California, who was chair man of the Republican National Convention in 1888, and who was a strong Blaine man, said: "Nominations are wholly acceptable to the business interests of the country. Harrison's administration has been strong and safe. The ticket will carry California."

the street in the rain. Harrison's vic-tory was celebrated tonight with fire-works and general jobification. The Journal will say, editorially, in the morning.

The renomination of President Harrison is a triumph of the rank and file of the Republican party over a combination of discrunted politicians. It is a triumph of the clean, conservative business interests of the country over an unwelcome attempt to make merchandise of politics. In short, if is the redemption of the country from the threatened era of personal politics, and means the substitution of industrial progress for pyrotechnic posturing.

HARRISON MEARS THE NEWS. How the Tidings Were Received at the White House.

Washington, June 10.—[By the Associated Press.] It was 5:30 when President Harrison learned that the Republican convention had indorsed his administration by nominating him for a second term. He was sitting in his office at the time chatting with several members of the Cabinet, and was probably the least excited of the group. Reports were being received on a spe cial wire and uninterrupted communicial wire and uninterrupted communication was established between the convention hall and the White House. About 3 o'clock, when it became known that a ballot was to be taken, Private Secretary Halford directed the telegraph room to be opened to the newspaper, men and others present. Halford sat near the operator and Postmaster-General Wanamaker occupied another desk near by. They were each supplied with tally sheets. Around them were about thirty newspaper men them were about thirty newspaper men and friends of the President. Secre-tary Elkins gravitated between the tele-graph office and President's room. He showed a thorough knowledge of the

The operator handed the bulletins to Halford, who read them aloud, recorded the votes and then passed them to Russell Harrison or Lieut. Parker, by whom they were carried to the President, who read them to Secretaries Noble, Rusk, Tracy and Atty.-Gen. Miller. There was not the least excitement during the balloting up to the time it was announced that Ohio had cast forty-five votes for McKinley. This was entirely unlooked for and caused doubt for a time of Harrison's nomination on first ballot. When it was announced, however, that the Keystome State had given the President nineteen votes the small cloud was dispelled. votes the small cloud was dispelled.

When the announcement came that When the announcement came that Harrison was nominated, the operator became excited, and without attemping to write out the message, cried it out excitedly. Great excitement followed the good news. "Good," said Mr. Wanamaker, and Halford darted from the room to advise the President. He was too late, however, as Mr. Tibbott, the President's stenographer, who was standing in the hall, had heard the words and carried the news to the Presidents. was standing in the hair, had near the words and carried the news to the Presdent before Halford reached him. Everybody, including the newspaper men, darted into the Cabinet-room and showered congratulations upon the President. He received them gratefully and shook hands with each. He was composed, but made no effort to conceal his intense gratification.

The news soon reached the private part of the executive mansion and Mrs. McKee, Mrs. Dimmick and Mrs. Parker hastened to the President's side. He received their congratulations in a most affectionate manner.

A member of the Cabinet suggested that the President say a few words. The President hesitated and the made a short address. After felicitous remarks concerning the newspaper men, words and carried the news to the Pres

It is even a demand upon belief that they would attempt the murder of the Chinese girls sheltered in the Missions. Yet these threats have been made prove the names of the secret Chinese isolieties, and it is the experience of San Brancisco that the warnings of these or familized assassins are no idle threats. Even if they are intended merely to frighten the missionaries and prevent their work of rescue, they are enough to warrant decided action. Healthdish can not be allowed to set up its rule here either by terrorism or force of arms. Our authorities should be able by legal measures to make these missionaries and their charges secure from ictual or potential violence in an American city. Otherwise some other way will surely be found.

News of Harrison's Nomination Creates No Enthusiasm.

Ratification Meeting at Athletic Park in the Evening.

"We will vote for him, but don't ask us to yell for him," said one of the leading Republicans of town just after the news of Harrison's nomination was received yes-terday afternoon. This about sizes up the situation so far as Pasadena is concerned. A large crowd nad congregated about the several bulletin boards and in the Western westeral builetin boards and in the Western Union Telegraph office, and as the vote of the States on the first ballot, was learned and it was seen that Harrison was more than holding his own, a state of gloom overspread the assemblages. When the wires flashed the news that Harrison was wires flashed the news that Harrison was nominated not a single cheer was heard, not did the slightest shade of enthusiasm manifest itself. The crowds simply dispersed and brought up here and there insmall groups to discuss how it all happened. These are facts not fancies, and it is simply giving the news, pure and simple, to state that the nomination is a decided disappointment to nine-tenths of the Republicans of this community and vicinity. Any other nomination would have stirred up some sort of enthusiasm, and either Blaine or McKinley would have aroused the Blaine or McKinley would have aroused the people to concert pitch.

But Pasadena Republicans are not the kind that will fall to support the party's nominee, however much at variance with their personal wishes, nence good, active work may be counted upon from this quarter during the campaign.

THE BATIFICATION MEETING.

By evening, when the ratification meeting was held under the auspices of the local Republican Club, a considerable amount of epithusiasm had been aroused. Following the news of . Harrison's nomination a continuous volley was fired from two anvil guns at Athletic Park. The Ratification Committee was busy meanwhile in laying in a supply of fireworks and collecting material for a huge bonfire.

Shortly after 8 o'clock a large crowd congregated at the park. Lots of noise was furnished by the anvils and the shot gun brigade led by Judge Rose. Soon the immense pile of combustibles that had been arranged about a tall and slender tree was set ablaze and when going at full blast presented a brilliant spectacle.

At 8:30 President J. A. Buchanan called the meeting to order. Judge Rose read the following list of gentlemen who had been chosen vice-presidents of the meeting. Most of them found seats on the grand stand: George F. Kernaghan, Dr. W. J. McAllister, Delos Arnold, A. G. Throop, Capt. Wakely, C. W. Buchanan, B. F. Ball, S. Washburn, W. E. Cooley, M. D. Mr. Buchanan first addressed those assembled, stating the object of the meeting While the nomination was not what the people here most wanted, he orged Harrison's good qualities and pressed the inportance of all good Republicans sticking to their posts and doing valiant work to elect him by a handsome majority. Judge Waldo M. York followed in a speech brimful of loyalty and patriotism. He was followed by Judge Lammie of Alhambra, who admitted that his man hadn't received the nomination. Yet he was a Republican, hence he was willing to sacrifice his wishes to the will of the majority of its representative leaders and do all in his power to support the chosen candidate.

G. Rossiter was next brought to the front. Mr. Rossiter confessed that he had loved and lost, but this was better than not to have loved at all. He was feeling as well as could be expected under the circumstances, and really managed to pay a very graceful tribute to the nominee, whom he believed all good Republicans should sup-

Judge H. W. Magee was the next speaker. Judge H. W. Magee was the next speaker. He was gratified at the enthusiasm manifested and predicted that by election time no Republicans would be found skulking in the ranks. The history of the party was reviewed from the time of Lincoln, and a few of its glorlous achievements mentioned. A brilliant peroration closed the address, which evoked great enthusiasm. Gen. L. A. Sheldon next spoke, and among those who followed were Capt. Simpson, W. E. Arthur, H. H. Rose and Mr. Lockert. The late hour forbids further mention in this issue.

A DEPRAVED WRETCH PUNISHED. A DEPRAVED WRETCH PUNISHED.

Frank Childs of San Francisco, son of Mrs. E. C. Bangs of this place, and who is known to all the old-time Pasadenians, is here on a visit. He came for pleasure purposes only, but before he had been here long he came to the conclusion that he had some business to execute, which he accordingly proceeded to attend to yesterday morning in a manner that will prove highly satisfactory to the entire community, except, perchance, the young man who constituted the second party to the proceedings.

suited by a young man who lives on Ellis street, between Orange Grove and Grand avenues, and whose name is withheld at present on account of his mother, who is present on account of his mother, who is believed to be an estimable woman. This young scoundrel—a name too good to apply to such a wretch—has indecently exposed his person recently on every possible occasion, care always being taken to hide his face. Thursday a relative of Mr. Childs was thus insulted while walking along the street. That evening Mr. Childs called at the house, but could not gain admittance. Yesterday morning early he called again, and at length met the mother of the young man he was looking for. He was directed to a stable, but the building was found to be empty. A visit to a second stable, however, brought him face to face with the object of his search. It didn't take Mr. Childs long to explain the nature of his visit, nor to emphasize it by knocking his man down. Of course the depraved wretch was too cowardly to protect himself, hence Mr. Childs had to pick him up severaltimes in order to give him half the drubbing he deserved. As he lay on the floor, badly bruised and battered, he promised never to do it again, whereupon his visitor departed. Reports of like acts in this vicinity have become entirely too frequent of late and Mr. Childs is to be congratulated on ably administering the only kind of punishment that is effective in such cases. The offense will hardly be repeated again very soon.

Absolutely no Demonstration Whatever— Preparations for the Fourth.

Business was almost suspended in this city yesterday on account of the election news. Great crowds of people stood in front of the Western Union and the Postal Telegraph companies offices reading the bulletins as they were posted up. When the news came in of Harrison's nomination there was absolutely no demonstrations whatever. The boys were all loaded for Blaine, and in the event of his nomination were going to "turn the town upside down." As soon as the result was posted everybody went at once to their homes, and that was the last of it. The Republicans of this city were overwhelmingly for Blaine, and were loath to believe that Harrison was nominated.

SANTA ANA.

The residents of Santa Ana yesterday were an expectant people. All day long THE TIMES branch office and the Western Union Telegraph office were crowded with people of all political parties anxious to hear the latest news from Minneapolis. After the balloting began interest increased and the number of people that faced the bulletin board was greatly increased. Soon after the balloting began the crowd made up their minds that it would be Harrison on the first ballot, as it proved to be.

As the Republicans in Orange county were, largely, warm supporters of the man from Maine, there was a temporary teeling of disappointment among a great many of Union Telegraph office were crowded with of disappointment among a great many of them when the choice of the convention flashed over the wire. But upon second thought they realized that that doctrine of the grand old party teaching its followers to abide the will of the majority and to all work for the success of the party was still intact, and preparations were at once be-gun for the ratification as previously an-nounced.

The various committees appointed at a publican party.

A very ingenious swindle which is being practiced quite extensively now in various fruit sections of the country has recently come to the attention of Government officials, and notices have been sent out to all postal departments.

A "fruit company" which only exists on letter headings and envelopes, will address a number of letters dated, generally New York or New Orleans, to, say "John Smith," its traveling agent, at different places of seidom more than 3000 or 5000 inhabitants, in care of the leading hotel indorsed; "Hold until Mr. S. calls." In due course of time Mr. Smith makes his appearance and being a smooth, polite gentleman, a good talker and apparently full of business he soon makes friends with everybody. His mail is handed to him in the office, and upon opening it he finds a check in one of the letters generally for about $50, drawn on some well-known New York bank. In another letter he receives supposed latest quotations in the fruit market for his guidance. As his prices are far below quotations received he starts out and soon succeeds in taking a large number of orders, as no payments are requested until the delivery of the hotel, asks for his bill and then it occurrs to him that he is just a little short of money and the check is produced. The hotel proprietor does not deem it policy to refuse to take it, and thus he becomes swindled for when the check is placed in a bank for collection it is before long rerefuse to take it, and thus he becomes swindled for when the check is placed in a a bank for collection it is before long re-turned with the information that the "fruit company" is not a depositor and is not known.

ANAHEIM. A special meeting of the City Trustees

A special meeting of the City Trustees was called Thursday evening by President Witte, at which a certificate of title to the city lot upon which stand the water works, and jail, just received from the abstract company, was submitted, showing that the city already owned the twenty-five feet north of the fence, which was supposed to mark the boundary line of the lot, and which the boundary line of the lot and which the boundary line of the lot say recent, resolution to purchase, so as to get sufficient room for contemplated improvements, it seems that the surveyor who set the stakes measured off- but sixy-five feet depth of the lot, when it should have been ninety; the fence was put on the sixty-five foot line and the other twenty-five feet has ever since been assessed to the owner of the adjoining property. The board by vote empowered the president to emptoy a Surveyor to set the proper line, remove all obstructions on the twenty-five foot strip and define the new boundary by a fence.

A very exciting runaway occurred on Center street yesterday afternoon at 4 o'clock. Dr. Hunt's horse became frightened at something and started up street with the top buggy. Near the corner of Claudina, he took the sidewalk and came sailing down the 12-foot cement course, struck the felegraph pole opposite the post-office, but went on and brought up against a hitching post in front of Lieb's saloon, where he was caught. A horse hitched to a cart in front of Lyons's store became scared at the rumpus, jumped up in the air and broke one of the shafts, but was caught and unhitched without further damage. Dr. Hunt's buggy was smashed considerably and the harness damaged. Had the horse succeeded in passing the hitching post, he would have run into three teams tied in front of Lyons's store, and perhaps created have among a big lot of goods on the sidewalk directly in his track. THE MYSTERY SOLVED.

The Rosedale Suicide is Finally Identified.

She Was a Widow from Sacramento Named Mrs. Chamberlain.

Some Relation of Mrs. Thomas, Who is Now Living at Azusa.

An Attempted Spielde on Victor Height -A Railroad Ticket Found on the Man Bearing the Name of A. Spauler.

Coroner Weldon held an inquest yesterday morning on the unknown woman who committed suicide on a child's grave at Rosedale cemetery Wednesday

Dr. Bryant, who made the post mortem, testified that the woman died from a large dose of oxalic acid. He had the stomach examined and found large quantities of the poison, and the Cor-oner produced a small bottle, which was found near the body in the ceme-tery, and as it contained oxalic acid it is supposed that she took the drug and threw the bottle away.

Several hundred people visited Nick-elson & Chase's undertaking rooms on Second street, where the inquest was held, but no one identified the body until about noon when Jack Dowd, ar and at once recognized the woman.

He stated that she is the widow of Fred Chamberlain, who was a conductor on the Central Pacific for a number of years, and died six or seven years ago. He has not seen Mrs. Cham-berlain for several years, but as soon as he saw her picture in yesterday's Timss he visited the undertakers and recognized her at once.

There is only one other person in Southern California who could identify her, and that is Mrs. David Thomas, who lives at Azusa. Mr. Thomas was formerly an engineer on the Southern Pacific and Mrs. Thomas is related to Pacine and Mrs. Thomas is related to the dead woman in some way.

Mr. Dowd, who was seen by a Times reporter, cannot account for her terrible act. She was keeping a lodging-house on J street, between First and Second streets, when he last saw her and she seemed to be doing well.

He is of the opinion that she came down here to see Mrs. Thomas, and failing to find her she went out to Mr. Thomas's lot in the cemetery and killed hereals on the group of little Mary herself on the grave of little Mary

Mrs. Chamberlain was about 40 years of age and was in perfect health.
Coroner Weldon will try to keep the body until Monday to see whether her friends will come forward and give her a respectable fineral.

HE TOOK LAUDANUM Last night at 6 o'clock the officer at the central police station was notified that a man was lying in a dying condi-tion on Victor Heights at the extension of Pearl street.

was taken to the receiving hospital as soon as possible and the stomach pump and every remedy known to the profession was used.

He was fairly well dressed and $70 was found on his person and a ticket from Tucson to San Francisco, bearing the name of A. Spauler. This was the only paper by which he could be identified.

The cause of his act is a mystery. He has the appearance of being a farmer or a mining man. Both doctors worked with the old man for several hours after they had given up all hopes Heavy Damages Claimed by Several of the Property-holders.

Testimony in the Temple Street

Suit for Lawyers' Fees Against Dr. Bragg and Mrs. Abila.

Judgment for $4850 Given Against the Couple-San Pedro Water Front Case Before Judge McKinley

Judge Shaw and a jury were occupied yesterday in listening to the testimony for the defense in the "Temple street grade" case. A number of witnesses were recalled and two new defendants introduced their evidence, viz., Dr. H. S. Orme and J. W. Winston. The former, who owns a sixty-foot lot on Bunker Hill avenue, claims that it will be wholly confiscated by the proposed im-provement and asks $10,000 damages; while the latter, on behalf of his wife, asks for $50,000 for her property, a lot on Temple and Bunker Hill avenue, 60x150 feet. At 3 c'clockin the afternoon the jury was taken out to inspect the property in charge of Surveyor E. T. Wright, and court then adjourned until 10 o'clock this morning.

GIVEN A JUDGMENT. Judge Wade tried the case of Clayton B. Wilson vs. B. F. Another Society Game at Athletic Park Today—San Jose Notes.

This afternoon there will be a ball game at Athletic Club Park which will doubtless attract a large attendance. The contestants will be the Insurance men's club, which has an unbroken record of victories, and a nine selected from the members of the Boyle Heights Tennis Club. All the players are more or less prominent in social circles, and the exhibition will undoubtedly bring out a large gathering of their admirers, especially among the fair sex. Game will be called at 3 o'clock, the batting order of the team being as follows:

The following paragraphs are taken from the San José Mercury of Thursday:

Manager Vanderbeck's crew of ball-tossers and lemon-squeezers showed up well yesterday in the game against the San José team, and won the first game of this series, by timely hitting in the third inning. Louis Balsz, whom the tall magnate of Oakland did not consider speedy enough for his team, was in the points for the Angels, and proved a puzzler to the San José batters, allowing but six scattering hits and fielding his position in perfect form.

Tredway, the funny man from the South, was in the game all the time, and, by the way, what an amount of lung power that man has and exercises. "Tred." you're a good one on the coaching lines, and together with "Rasty" Wright make a good team.

In the third for Los Angeles Tredway Manager Vanderbeck's crew of ball-toss gether with "Rasty" Wright make a good team.

In the third for Los Angeles Tredway got to first on balls and then it was that the Angelefios hit the ball. McCauley made a long drive to deep right that was good for two cushions, but Umpire McDonald called it foul, though it was 'a fair hit by ten feet. After the usual kick about the decision, "Pop" McCauley returned to the plate from third base, where he was resting after his effort, and this time hit a single to center, so that there could be no doubt of its being fair. Hassamaear also singled to center, scoring Tredway and Capt. Glenalvin scored McCauley and Hassamaear on his long drive to left center for two bags. The next three went out in order, but the Angels had added three runs to their score, and Manager Vanderbeck, who sat in the grand stand smoking his "tufer" cigar, smiled.

PUBLIC WORKS.

Recommendations Adopted by the Board at Yesterday's Meeting.

At the regular weekly meeting of the Board of Public Works, held yesterday, the following recommendations were adopted for submission to the Council yesterday: On the petition from D. A. Cashman et al., for Council to order Eleventh street

On the petition from D. A. Cashman et al., for Council to order Eleventh street graded, graveled and curbed, under specifications No. 5, between the east side of Vernon street to the east side of Alvarado street, we recommend that the petition be granted and the City Engineer instructed to present ordinance of intention.

On the petition from S. White for Council to order a curb placed in front of lot 15. block 28, East Los Angeles, we recommend that the Street Superintendent be instructed to remove the return curbs and lay curb as petitioned for.

Recommend that the petition from C. E. Plummer et al. for Council to establish the grade of Vernon sireet, between Eleventh and Pico streets, be granted and the City Engineer instructed accordingly.

In the matter of the petition of George T. Hanley et al., for Council to order the Claster archies 56d surveyed and defined from Adobe street to Elysian Park, and all obstructions removed therefrom, we recommend that the City Engineer ascertainty and results of the same has been done that he then proceed to survey and define said road.

In the matter of the petition from J. E. Hunsicker et al., for the Council to order for Girard street from fis intersection with Sentous street to its westerly terminus-graded, graveled, curbed with cement and cement sidewalk five feet wide laid on both sides, all work to be done under the provisions of part four of the general street law, we find that the City Engineer has estimated the cost and his estimate is less than $2 per feet on each side of the street, we therefore recommend that a sewer suitable in sixe be also laid on said street and included in this improvement, and that the City Engineer has estimate of cost, and if the same is in excess of $2 per front foot that he also present ordinance of intention.

I AM CRANDALL.

The Insurance Swindler at Last Confesses.

He Admits That He is the Man Who is Wanted.

Once by His Son and a Number of Old Friends

Crandall has at last broken down and confessed everything. A special dispatch from Buffalo, N. Y., of date June 8, says:

S, says:
Crandall has confessed. Realizing the futility of further attempting to deny his identity in the face of the web of evidence which has been so completely woven about him, Crandall sent for his counsel, this morning and said: "There is no use in concealing my identity any longer. I am Crandall, Bryant B, Crandall." This statement was made public by the lawyer.

CREATED A SENSATION.

Crandall's Arrival at His Old Home-The Scenes at the Depol: The facts of Crandall's arrival and identification at Buffalo have already been briefly given in the Associated Press dispatches. The Buffalo Evening Times of the 4th gives the following interesting details:

The expected arrival of President Barri-

The expected arrival of President Harrison or some other great dignitary could have hardly excited more interest than did that of the alleged Bryant B. Crandail.

Detectives Diehl and Lynch and their now famous charge were known to be on the Lake Shore train due at 8:20 last night.

Long before that time the large Central station was packed and jammed. Men women and children formed the motley throng, which overflowed into the great train shed. The latter were the favored and only such as had influence with the railroad company, police, or were interested legally in the identification of Crandall, or held railroad tickets were permitted to pass through the gates. Quite a number purchased tickets for other trains leaving at the same hour, so they could number purchased tickets for other trains leaving at the same hour, so they could have the opportunity of being among the first to see and greet the alleged Crandail when he stepped from the express.

Nelson O. Tiffany, Dr. Brown, young John Crandail, Charles Newman and Samuel Stewart of Clifton street, an old friend, paced nervously up and down the train house waiting for the train. Detectives and patrolmen stood around as plentiful as violets in May. Detectives Mack, O'Loughlin, Reagan and Donovan were there to assist their confreres, if it should be necessary. sist their confreres, if it should be neces-sary.

The train drew its long length rapidly usual stopping-place without any one catching a glimpse of the man they all wanted to see.

"He didn't come on this train," cried the crowd, but before the words were fairly out of their mouths Detective Diehl, with a handbag in one hand and his coat slung over a shoulder, was seen stepping from the forward end of the day coach. Right behind him was an old man, who looked the typical California farmer. He was tall and broad-shouldered, while a thin gray beard hid his chin and cheeks. His almost white hair was covered by a big white sombrero. His clothing was such as any farmer might wear. As he stepped forward to Detective Dethi's side he pulled his hat way down over his face, almost masking it from the many curious eyes that were directed toward him. Nevertheless, people were sure it was the man wanted, and several addressed him as "Mr. Crandail," but he paid no more attention to the salutation than would a man who had never heard it.

When the party started for the carriage by way of the waiting-room, the crowd which surged about was so great that it was several minutes before the sidewalk was reached and Crandail started on his way to police headquarters.

The arrival there was a repetition of that at the depot, and soon the large corridors, office and even staircase were crowded with

Before any business was done, Crandall was served with a luncheon, which he ate was served with a luncheon, which he ate with much relish.

Then followed a long and very searching

Then followed a long and very scattering examination by the superintendent. Question after question was put to the man in the hope of obtaining an admission that he was indeed Crandall, but it was Greek against Greek, and the police superintendent had his trouble for his pains. But ent had his trouble for his pains. But while the man would not admit that he was Crandall, he did not deny that he was. After a while Mr. Tiffany and Dr. Brown were admitted.

The old man looked up as any one would upon the entrance of another. He gave no sign of recognition when Mr. Tiffany, holding out his hand, said familiarly: "How are you Crandall, old man? I am glad to see you back." All Crandall replied was: "I have not the pleasure of your acquaintance."

Dr. Brown tried the same tactics and was treated to a similar reply.
Then the old man was asked if he wished

Then the old man was asked if he wished to see his son.
"My son?" he asked in a querulous tone and with a look of surprise. "No, I don't want to see anybody else tonight, if I can help it, until tomorrow. I would like to go to bed."

Nevertheless he was ushered into the telegrapher's room and John B. Crandall and his friend, Samuel Stewart, admitted to the room just vacated. The young man was told to look through the glass partition, and just as he stepped there for that purpose the old man saw him and, raising his hat, partially hid his face from view.

But the young man had seen enough. "I think it is my father," he said, "but he has changed a great deal since I saw him last. I don't think he recognizes me. Why should he. It is more than six years since he saw me last and I was then a little lad. I have grown two feet since then."

'Is it so that you will assist in prosecuting him, as some people say?" asked the reporter.

"I have nothing to say," was the laconic reply. Nevertheless he was ushered into the tel-reply.

Mr. Stewart, the young man's companion, was sure that the prisoner was Crandall.

"You are not looking well, Mr. Crandall." said he, "I hope, though, you will soon be better."

Thanks for your kind wishes. It seems

"Thanks for your kind wisnes. It seems to me I have seen you before, but I cannot recall you. What is your name?"
"Stewart." Was the answer.
"Stewart! Stewart! It "seems to me I have heard that name and seen your face, but where I can't tell."
"We had business transactions before you left," suggested Mr. Stewart.

orisoner.

"Here in Buffalo," said Mr. Stewart.
The prisoner made no reply.

CRANDALL'S FIRST INTERVIEW.

He Positively Refused to Acknowledge that He is the Man. The Buffalo Times reporter also interviewed Crandall the morning after his

"How are you feeling this morning, Mr. Crandall:" asked a Times reporter.

"Very poorly," was the reply.

"Do you wish to see your wife, Mrs. Crandall, today?" asked the reporter.

"I don't want to see anybody. I am ill and want to be left alone. I don't want to be discourteous, but I don't want to be interviewed."

"But wouldn't you like to have a talk

"But wouldn't you like to have a talk with Mrs. Crandail and your boy!" was asked.

You recognized a great many old ac-quaintances among those who have called on you?" was asked.

Crandall nodded his head affirmatively in an involuntary way for a moment, and then, recollecting kimself, shook his head and said "No."

and said "No."
"Have you retained an attorney yet."
"I have not. I may and I may not need one. Who knows?"
"If you are not Crandall, why don't you identify yourself as Wilson?"
"My lawyer says for me to keep quiet and I intend to do so. I have nothing more to ay."

"You are looking rather ill," remarked "My physician at Los Angeles says I have Bright's disease," was the answer.

THE IDENTIFICATION.

Old Acquaintances Recognized Him on First Sight.

The Times also gives the following details as to Crandall's identification: Dozens of people who had formerly known Crandall called at police headquarters this morping to get a look at him.

Among them was Dr. S. S. Green, the old family physician. Dr. Green took a good look at him before Crandall perceived him.
Dr. Green then took him by the hand and shook it heartily while he called Crandall by name.

by one with the artily while he called Crandali by name.

Crandall returned the pressure of the hand, but did not raise his eyes or give any other sign of recognition.

"You look fil," said Dr. Green, and then Crandall gave the same answer that he had to the reporter. Dr. Green then passed out of the room.

To a reporter the doctor said he was not sure that the man he had seen was Cransure that the man he had seen was cransured to the control of the cont of the room.

To a reporter the doctor said he was not sure that the man he had seen was Crandall. If he was he had changed very much. This man was thin and slight, while Crandall as he remembered him was portly, and could not have weighed less than 180 pounds. Still he thought it was his old client, but would not swear to it.

Nelson O. Tifiany, of the Western New York Masonic Life Association, was a visitor to headquarters at noon. In conversation with a Times reporter he said: "There is no doubt about the man's identity, and in fact I knew him last night at the railroad depot when I saw the back of his head. Five intimate friends of his identitied him this morning, and his wife is satisfied that he is the man. She has turned over in all to me as trustee for the companies interected about $7000 in cash and real estate. seted about $7000 in cash and real estate. Out of the property in my hands I will pay the reward and the expenses involved in searching for and in bringing Crandail here, and divide the balance between the companies. The expenses amount to about $1500. The companies and associations which agreed to bring Crandail back and defray the expenses of the search were the Western New York Masonic Life Association, my com-York Masonic Life Association, my company, the A.O.U.W. and the Knights Templar. Of course we will not get anything more than a percentage on the amount of insurance paid when a division is made."

"Do you think Crandall can be convicted the made and the convicted the made and the convicted the

of crime under all the circumstances?"

'I do not care to venture an opinion. He was indicted for grand larceny and I presume the District Attorney thinks he has evidence to sustain the indictment."

'Of course it is Crandail,' was the remark of Alderman Summers, after he had looked at the prisoner. 'Didn't I live across the road from him for years and have almost daily dealings with him! That's Crandail and no mistake."

Sealer of Weights and Measures Hillery also identified the man as Crandail. Hetoo, was his neighbor and saw him several times a day for months.

William Aylsroyd was also there to see

of crime under all the circumstances

William Aylsroyd was also there to see Crandall. He is an ex-fireman and now Crandall. He is an ex-fireman and now keeps the North Star road-house at Spring Brook, Erie county. In 1885 he operated the Box farm at Pine Hill on shares with Crandall who had leased it from the owner. He knows Crandall if anybody does, and says the man in custody is he. He got a good look at him, but did not seek an interview.

"I ought to know him," said Mr. Ayls-royd, "he owes me $75 now. We had trouble enough over our partnership af-fairs."

"Yes, and he owes me money for shoeing his horses," put in brawny Lee M. Coots, who accompanied the last speaker. "I had a shop near the Box farm and did all Crandall's blacksmith work. That's the old man and no mistake. No, I don't want to talk with him just yet, I will later on, though."

talk with him just yet, I will later on, though."

Others who took glimpses at the alleged Crandall were Comptroller Gavin, Eugene Rogers, A. S. Burghard, Alexander Sloan and Jacob Morgenstern. Every one of them except the latter was positive in his identification of the man as Crandall.

At 10 o'clock Crandall was removed to the jall in a coupé, in which Dr. Fowler and Detective Dienl'Accompanied him.

He had considerable difficulty in getting down the stairs, so weak was he, and was almost carried down in the arms of Detective Diehl. Great difficulty was experienced in reaching the carriage, as the sidewalk was blocked with people the length of the building.

Then the reporters were invited to see the prisoner.

"How do you do. Mr. Crandall?" asked the Times man, but the old man made no reply.

Then he was asked to make a statement for the press. He replied: "I asked the has been used for six years in succession."

The watchers were well behaved even when the ballot was being announced, kept cool and while quite a number displayed considerable interest, there was no cheer ing and no enthusiasm to speak of.

There was some betting on the quiet. but it seemed to be a foregone conclusion soon after the convention convened that Harrison would be the choice, but even his staunchest followers were not anxious to bet.

When the result of the ballot was an nounced there was some little cheering, but the crowds seemed to be minus leaders, and were at a loss to know just what to do.

Some minutes after the result was announced the old campaign cannot was wheeled out and the usual salute -was fired. A number of flags were run up as soon as the result of the ballot was announced.

THE RATIFICATION.

Final arrangements for the ratifica tion exercises, to take place in this city

Final arrangements for the ratification exercises, to take place in this city this evening, were made last night at the Union League rooms at a meeting of the Executive Committee.

Walter S. Moore, of the committee on electric lights, torches, etc., reported that the electric light company had donated the use of several lights to be used at the old Courthouse, the contemplated place of holding the literary exercises. Mr. Moore stated that the owner of the old Courthouse property had peremptorially refused to allow any demonstration to take place on or near his property No electric lights can, therefore, be placed on the old building, but they will be placed as near there as possible, anyway the speeches will be delivered from the steps of that building just the same, so say those in charge of the matter.

There was a full representation present of all the clubs of the city, and ent of all the clubs of the city, and members of each reported progress.

The general headquarters for all the clubs and the Republicans of the city and county will be at the Union League rooms. The members of the League wish it understood that all Republicans are cordially invited to participate in the procession and make their place of rendezvons at the League.

The Harrison Club (tormerly the Nominee Club) reported that they would have at least 100 men in line, all of when would be provided with the title of the control of the c whom would be provided with the tricolored pampas plumes and torches.
The members will meet at the rooms of Justice Stanton and from there will march to the Union League rooms.
Torches will be provided for the men who participate in the procession.

There will be a drum brigade stationed in front of the Harrison Club rooms to call the boys together, and as $100 has been set apart for the fireworks alone, aside from the mortars, shotgun brigade and other means of making a five language. and other means of making a first-class ratification celebration provided for at the last meeting, there will no doubt be a proper demonstration.

THE PROCESSION.

Grand Marshal E. H. Hutchinson and his chief-of-staff Col. Freeman G. Teed have made all necessary arrangements and are ready for the parade. Follow-

WAILING A WAIL.

"Jayhawker's" State of Mind After th

IN THE DEN, 8:45 p.m., June 10. The lights have been turned out, for the tragedy is ended and the audience has crept shivering into the quiet sad ness of their homes. It was a cold and clammy success, and fell with the usual dull and sickening thud. For two hours I have walked the streets amid the mourners, and the quietness reminded me of "The Burial of Sir John Moore." "Not a drum was heard, not a funeral note," and everybody seemed willing to apply the next line:

'As his corse to the ramparts we hurried.' If they could only have had the opportunity to do so. I found Henry Gage creeping up a dark stairway to his office, and I said, "Well, you must feel good as you are to preside at the ratification meeting tomorrow night."
"But I cannot preside, I have a lifeand-death matter of business which calls me far, far away tomorrow, so I cannot ratify. I would be delighted to feel happy at a ratification meeting."

I am careful to quote his exact words, because I do not want to missepresent him. My friend Osborne went quietly to his home with the remark that he to his home with the remark that he did not care to exult over his neighbors who had not been as lucky in guessing on the result as he had been. But I noticed that he wore his overcoat and had it buttoned down before. And I also observed that he did not wear as broad a smile as he does usually when the side which he has been shouting for has won the fight two men. It was dark where I came upon them, and I heard one of them remark: "I am rejoiced that Harrison, is nominated." The earnest tone of the speaker impressed me, and I turned about and followed them until they were nears light, when I discovered. they were near a light, when I discovered that the Harrison enthusiast was col. E. E. Hewitt, a prominent Demo-cratic politician. And then he went on to say: "Years ago the Republicans stole the whisky plank and practice from us, and now they have taken our practice of doing the right thing at the wrong time."

wrong time."

The serious question now is, how shall we celebrate the wake! The corpse has to be kept on hand for a long time, but it is so cold that it will smell no worse before it is interred than it does now Perhaps it can be galvanized into life, but the work will bring out the sweat on the political doctors. Meanwhile, the active candidates for various kinds of office have felt the atmospheric depression upon the mercury of their ambitions and are hesitating about the

The only encouraging word I heard came from one of the ward workers; one of the fellows "who is in it for the stuff."

Said he: "It is the best combination that has been made for the boys since Stanford was on the track. Whitelaw Reid's father-in-law, D. O. Mills, has the ducats, and he will try to buy the place for his son-in-law.
He knows what an up-hill road
it will be in New York for Harrison, to say nothing of the distrust of the working classes for the Ohio aristocrat who married his daughter, and the old man will whack up a pile to pull through. I tell you the workers will have a snap this year, no matter which way the election goes."
I hope that Republicans will say but little until they have become in a measure resigned to their disappointment. They should bring to bear upon it the philosophy of the Dutchman who was informing his pastor that his wife had recently died. "Was she resigned Said he: 'It is the best combinawas informing his pastor that his wife had recently died. "Was she resigned to go!" asked the holy man. "Resigned! Hell! She had to be," was the answer of the bereaved hus-

Corns on Horses' Feet. [Exchange.] [Exchange.]
Corns are so commonly the cause of lameness in road horses, that a brief statement may prove of value to many owners. Corns are bruises of the sole of the foot, usually occurring in the angle formed by the bone and crust in front of the heel. They are seldom found on the hind feet. They are in the horse what a blood blister is to man, and result from the same cause, a bruise. Though blacksmiths file away the crust, and put on badly fitting shoes, bruise. Though blacksmitts nie away the crust, and put on badly fitting shoes, yet these useful artisans do not, with all their faults, cause one corn in ten. A good horseshoer is a man of a truly humane art. The bone should never be cut away by a blacksmith, and a veterinarian will not do it but from the necessity to remove disease. Were cessity to remove disease. Where there is active inhammation after the paring out is done, the foot should be see into a linseed meal poultice till the inhammation subsides.

The Board of Education met in ad journed session last night for the pur-pose of electing a superintendent of schools and assistant, and also to hear the ladies on their proposition to estab-lish an industrial department in the

A communication from the Fourth of July Committee asking the board to interest themselves in an effort to get as many school children as possible to take part in the celebration of the Fourth was received. As the schools will be out at that time the board will have no authority over them. The matter was referred to the Teachers' Committee.

A communication from a number of ladies who offered to introduce an indastrial department in the schools, was read. The communication set forth the benefits of the system, and as they have a large sum of money at their disposal they are willing to defray the expenses for one year, so that it may be given a thorough test.

Gen. Mansfield stated that he thinks it a good plan and asked that one of the ladies, Miss Maynard, be permitted to address the board. address the board.

The lady was introduced and stated that they have already established a cooking school in a building next to the Spring-street school. All they want is for the board to instruct the teachers to for the board to instruct the teachers to furnish classes. She asked that a committee be appointed to assist the ladies. On motion Gen. Mansfield and Messrs. Roberts and Crowley were appointed. The board was invited to take lunch at 1 p.m., one week from today, at the school, No. 551 South Spring street. The board gleefully accepted, and Miss Maynard retired.

A communication from the City Attorney stating that it is his opinion that the Superintendent was elected for four years at the election one year ago.

Quite a discussion as to whether the board understood a year ago that they were electing the superintendent for one year or for four years. No one seemed to know that such a law was in existence at the time the election tool olace.

On motion the report from the City

Attorney was received and filed.

The chair then announced that the next order of business is the election an Assistant Superintendent of Schools. The members did not seem ready to vote on the matter, and a motion was made to postpone the election until the next meeting, but the motion was no put., Dr. Hitchcock moved that the office of Assistant Superintendent be abolished. Before the vote, which was a tie, was announced, it was discovered that the board cannot abolish the office but it is in their power to declare it va-cant until the rules are revised.

On motion it was decided to pass the election of an assistant superintendent. The fight is on the Superintendent, as some of the members are determined to get rid of Mr. Frusner, and if he per-sists in holding office they propose to take his assistant from him and force him out of office.

Mr. Marsh moved that the Superintendent make his estimate for ten months' schooling for the ensuing year. The motion was carried by 7 to 1. The Ways and Means Committee was mistructed to wait on the Council mext Monday and ask for sufficient money to carry on the school during the balance of the present year.

Quite a discussion on a motion to change the musical text books took place, and Gen. Mansfield thought there should be no change as the county

Gen. Mansfield opposed the adoption of the proposed new text book on the grounds that the system has been abolished in San Bernardino, Riverside and other places recently.

Gen. Mansfield moved to postpone the matter until the next regular meeting. The motion was lost.

Gen. Mansfield spoke strongly against the adoption of a system that the board knows nothing about. He stated that it looks suspicious to see a vote cast under pressure of a man who has a scheme to Mr. Marsh and other members spoke

FRUIT SAMPLES.

Valuable Information Furnished by Prof. Hilgard.

In response to an urgent demand from intending exhibitors of fruit spec-imens at the Columbian Exposition, Prof E. W. Hilgard of Berkeley University Experiment station, has issued a summary of information on the conservation of fruit samples. He empha sizes the fact that the fruit should be taken as unripe as is consistent with a proper exhibition of the size, surface, texture and color, and should not be touched with the hand at all. This can be accomplished by holding tissue paper close under the chosen specimen and cutting the stem with a pair of shears, avoiding any jar or pressure. He recommends the same plan of preserving as that practiced by Superintendent Wiggins at the Chamber of Comperce and oitlined in The Times a few days ago. It is absolutely essential rew days ago. It is absolutely essential that the jars containing the fruit be hermetically sealed. Glass-stoppered jars can be made tight with "canning wax" or paraffine. A very good way to prevent mold on the surface of the fluid in case a little are about 100 per proper. in case a little air should get in, is to put a few drops of best coal oil on the surface before sealing.

Tennyson's Play.

The failure of Lord Tennyson's play,

The Foresters, as a dramatic production should not, and with all judicious peo-ple does not, detract from his fame and sition as the most eminent lyric master of the Victorian era.

His mistake is a common one with poets. It is an amiable mistake of the idealizing tendency to substitute abstract sentiment for concrete character, and beauty of statement for cogency and graphicality of action, in a domain where the eye is even more directly and quickly appealed to than the ear. With all its acknowledged prettiness and fairy tenderness, its fine speeches and fairy tenderness, its fine speeches and refined phrases, it failed to become a dramatic composition and wearied a first night audience in spite of the respect felt for the distinguished author. In a dramatic, or even in a theatrical sense, it is therefore untrue to speak of this experiment as the 'most important incident of the dramatic season here or abroad." The importance of the event is owing entirely to the eminence of the author in another line of work most disauthor in another line of work most dis-tinctly undramatic. The play itself opens no new vista of thought, it deals with none of the problems that interest the minds of men at this moment; it fails to put urgently before us any ne trains to put urgently before us any new types of character, and in the at-tempt to reproduce some old and sturdy ones that are very familiar, emasculates them with a sensuous attempt at verbal delicacy beyond recognition and sympathy. To say that the experiment and failure of this fantasie is the most important incident of the dramatic season is to concede to a name what we cannot find in the work.

Nor is it true to argue, as some of the Anglo-critics are now arguing, that this form of nursery tale, told without action, or any other purpose than to lull the intellectual sense, is the highest nse to which the theater of our time can be put. The theater, to be worthy of half the attention it receives from the press, ought to present the highest forms of life, and not waste time with "Jack and the Bean Stalk." It is true enough that it can make place now and then for the pictorial dream fantasies, in which the baldest of material undertakes to do service for the ideal; but these pictures addressed to the visual voluptuousness of an overbred sense should not be put in the category of the most important events. By far the greater part of the theatergoers of our day are not sick of life; they are not animated by a morbid desire to lie in the sun on the banks of Avon and shut their ears to what is going on around them in the world. They do not sympathize with Lord Tennyson in his contempt for the present. They are of material undertakes to do service for sympathize with Lord Tennyson in his contempt for the present. They are not actuated by an enthusiasm for the new asceticism which prefers to be under "melancioly boughs" rather than be under the "garish eye" of this exigent day. They want plays whose purpose and meaning are abreast of the hour, and they want above all else to have them peopled with earnest, vital men and women, torn with human passion, broken-hearted with human misery, triumphing over evil and crushed under its weight; living, loving, defying and dying in just accordance with the slowly evolving problem of our destiny as we see it in life all about us.

The man who presents such a play—whether it be a Tennyson or a Thomas—will really create one of the most important incidents of one dramatic season. The poet on the other hand, who, disgusted with the human conflict, asks us to go back to Sherwood Forest and enlarge and clarify our spiritual vision by a picnic in costumes, is trying to make the contemporaneous and executive playhouse do the work of the contemplative chimney corner, where it is still the privilege of genius to sit like a slippered Pantaloon and mumble the madrigals and myths of a lost youth.

Men's Women.

It is only of late years that "the man's woman" has been classified and her influence generally recognized; now every one is theorizing as to the canses of her power. Naturally she varies with her environment, but her dominant qualities are the same all the world over. She is not necessarily a lively woman; at a dinner party she does not set the table in a year; nor has she as whimsical answer for the men she a whimsical answer for the men she meets. The lively woman's mission is to amuse, and she fulfils it; but it is her quieter sister who penetrates to the deeps of masculine nature, and pleases he her very placidity her talent to by her very placidity, her talent to listen and keep silence. She does not try to attract, she has no need of effort, for men go out of their way to admire her. This type of man's woman gives one the imtype of man's woman gives one the impression of being simple, good-tempered, refined, and modest. Nothing ruffles or disturbs her. If it were not a word that did not fit her graceful, smiling, sweet personality, one might say she was lazy. Mentally, there is nothing much in her. It is more than probable that she has no great force of character, and one cannot imagine her passionately disturbed about anything. No — perpetually pleasing, invariably amiable, apparently in sympathy with all who approach, she goes her wav undisturbed by the sighs of her lovers so long as the sun shines and life holds just what her material nature demands. Her attraction is potent and singular.

just what her material nature demands. Her attraction is potent and singular. It is outside and beyond her own consciousness. She is herself—that is enough. She has, moreover, none of the tricks of a coquette; none of the "draw off to draw on" game. She has never practiced any of the deceits that women of stronger natures will descend to without scruple when they love the man in question. She is not indifferent to the power she possesses, but takes only a quiet joy out She is not indifferent to the power she possesses, but takes only a quiet joy out of her triumphs. Yet she does not like to inflict pain. It makes her a little sorry to bring disappointment into a man's life—not sorry enough to lie awake all night, but sorry enough to sigh a little when she thinks of him twice in the twenty-four hours. Life to her is so peaceful that her restful charm is as powerful at twenty-eight as at eighteen. How pleasant, how free from jars life would be with her, thinks her adorer. Would it? Only so long as the sunshine lasted.

I am fascinated and enthralled by your sun-kissed, rose-embowered, semi tropical summer land, of Hellenic sky and hills of Hymettus, with its paradoxical antitheses; of flowers and flannels; strawberries and sealskin sacks; open fires with open windows; snow-capped mountains and orange blossoms; winter locking down upon summer: a toosymountains and orange blossoms; winter looking down upon summer; a topsyturry land where you dig for wood and climb for your coal; where water pipes are laid above ground with no fear of jack frost; and your principal rivers flow bottom side up and invisible most of the time; where the boys climb up hill on burros, and slide down hill on wheels; where the trees are green all the year and you go outdoors in December to get warm; where anything unpleasant, from a seismic disturbance to mosquitoes in March, is "exceptional" and ant, from a seismic discursance to mos-quitoes in March, is "exceptional" and surprising. A land where there are no seasons, but sunshine and shade are so distinctly marked that one can be easily half baked on one side and dangerously chilled on the other.

Cutter has brought us for examination some specimens of the Tardiff orange which seem to confirm his theory that in this orange we have a variety which we can profitably propagate in place of the Mediterranean Sweet. ety which we can profitably propagate in place of the Mediterranean Sweet. It appears that this variety when planted in the immediate vicinity of the Navel, the Malta Blood and the Mediterranean Sweet has withstood the frosts which have affected the others more or less severely. The quality of the orange even in May is sufficiently good to allow of its use at the season when the Ruby and the St. Michael's are made use of, while it can hang upon the tree as late as is desirable without serious deterioration. Its habit of growth, like the Ruby, is vigorous, and Mr. Cutter is of the opinion that in the Navel, the Ruby, the St. Michael and the Tardiff we have a "big four" in the orange line which will, with the Seedling cover the complete round of the shipping season satisfactorily. It seems to us that the Tardiff, while not superior in qualthe complete round of the shipping sea-son satisfactorily. It seems to us that the Tardiff, while not superior in qual-ity to the best Mediterranean Sweets, is more uniform in quality and superior as a a keeper, and since it will go un-harmed through a cold spell which would ruin a crop of the latter that its superiority as a late orange must be fully admitted.

FRESH LITERATURE.

THE -THREE FATES. By F. MARIAN CRAWFORD, author of "Mr. Isaacs," etc., etc. (London and New York: Macmillan & Co.)

In his new book Mr. Crawford has entered so largely into the work and methods of the novelist that he is sure to be suspected of autobiography. His bero is a young man who begins life as a paid contributor of book notices to a saily paper. It is only books of slight importance that are intrusted to him, and as he receives instructions as to the amount of space to be given to each amount of space to be given to each treat matters according to his own judgment, he of course considers him-self illused. After a sufficient discipline of this kind George Winston Wood be-gins to write articles for the magazines, gins to write articles for the magazines, and in describing bis progress, his hopes, his disappointments and partial successes, there is no doubt but the author exhibits an intimate acquaintance with the kind of a career he is chronicling, but it by no means follows that the story is in any true sense autobiographical. All fiction, deserving the name, embodies the personal experiences and observation of the author.

tion of the author. But the final purpose of Mr. Crawford's story is full of interest. The title "The Three Fates" has reference to the influence upon the hero's career of three women who in turn attract him. The story will certainly hold the attention of the reader.*

SYBIL KNOX, or Home Again. A story of today. By Edwand E. Hale, author of "East and West," "In His Name," etc., etc. (New York: Cassell Publishing Company.*)

When the opportunity came for Sybil Knox to end a protracted stay in Rome, she gladly seized it, and for reasons of her own took second cabin passage in the Tropic; she has for a fellow passenger Bertha Gerhard, in quest of a lost husband. The story tells how Mrs. Knox aided Bertha in the search, and of her improvements and of the improvements and of the improvements. tells now Mrs. Knox aided Bertha in the search, and of aer impressions and ex-periences in her native New England village, Atherton; in these there is food for speculation, comparisons and social study. I once heard a large fruit-grower say, that the black scale is the worst pest we have to contend with, because nearly every one seems to think it amounts to nothing, consequently it is allowed to go on with its quiet work of taking the best life from the tree. This scale is easily controlled with the resin wash, and there is no excuse for the thousands of dollars annual loss. This wash I prepare as follows:

For each 100 gallons of solution I mix 25 pounds of resin, 6 pints of fish oil, 5 pounds of caustic soda 70 per cent. Add 12 or 15 gallons of water, and boil thoroughly for three or four hours, which will make a solution of the consistency of soft soap, then add water to make 100 gallons, which applied to trees infested with the black, brown, white, or even the red scale, will result in practically clearing the tree. With red scale I have with two thorough sprayings killed 98 per cent. On the olive I have used a solution of 18 pounds of resin to each 100 gallons, and had exceilent results. The 'time for spraying orange trees for black scale is after the fruit is half or two-thirds grown, as before that there is danger of marking the fruit. Or, it may be effectually applied in the spring before the fruit is set. With this, as with paris green, avoid extremely hot weather.

There are many other insecticides,

A Wise Measure.

[Pomona Progress.]

We have it on good authority that a bill will be introduced in the Legislature next winter proposing to make it a misdemeanor for any individual, firm, association or corporation to brand orange or lemon boxes as coming from a locality, town or city other than that in which the fruit is picked and packed. Similar laws protecting the public against unscripulous canners of fruits and vegetables are common in the Eastern States and have been declared constitutional. In Ohio and New York all canned goods sold in open market must be branded, so as to inform the consumer as to the quality of fruit consumers of fruits and predicts the early transformation of the Indian population into a creditable ele tained within, and where and by whom the goods were put up. We are heartly in favor of some similar last that will protect honest orange and tricks of fraudulent packers. Such a law will act as a shield to a locality, where orchardists have labored long and have expended capital to produce the best fruit in the market, from the injury done that locality and the growers by dealers having inferior fruit preduced elsewhere, but branded under the name of the most reputable product and more favorably-known locality, A law like the one it is proposed to ask and more favorably-known locality. A law like the one it is proposed to ask for will serve as an incentive to all classes of people, communities and sections to make for themselves the best reputation in the growing of citrus fruits, feeling, as they will, under the operation of the proposed law, that their brand and name are secure from trickery and deceit. Gov. Markham told a Pomona man on Friday that he believed a bill like the one we have outlined is necessary, and that the fraudulent branding of thousands of boxes of damaged oranges in Southern California this year has brought the matter to public attention. public attention.

Destroying Canker Worms.
[Max A. Thelig in Pacific Rural Press.]
Our method is to band the trees with tarred papers—the tands about seven inches wide, the upper edge fitted snugly to the free, so the moth cannot crawl underneath. Commencing about December 1, and renewing about every five days, we spread on the bands a mixture of printer's ink, procured ready ture of printer's ink, procured ready made in San Francisco for about 9 or to cents a pound. This renewing must be kept up till the last of the female moths have left the ground, generally the middle of Jauuary, when, if this method has been thoroughly tollowed, your trees will be found free from eggs and the cankerworm a thing of the Have also tried spraying with Paris green, but without the least result. From young trees the bands should be removed as early as possible in the spring, as the oil in the mixture may soak through the paper and injure the bark of very young trees.

Glanders.

[Pacific Rural Press.]

Dr. A. E. Buzard, who has been employed by the Supervisors of several counties to make inspection for glanders, tells a reporter that he has, during the last two and a half years killed 150 glandered horses in the counties of Contra Costa, Monterey and Santa Barbara, and twenty-two of these horses he has destroyed this year alone. This is a large number for the area covered. If a human being is so unfortunate as to get inocculated with the virus of this dread disorder, it means certain death sconer or later, for it is absolutely in curable. In England and on the Continent they have been for a long time usin a horse-shoe made by compressing common cow-hide. It is composed of three thick nesses of cowskin pressed in a stee mold and then subjected to a chemica preparation. It is claimed for it that it is much lighter, that it lasts longer and that split hoofs are never known in horses using it. It is perfectly smooth at the bottom, no calks being required, the shoe adhering firmly to the most polished surface. Its elasticity prevents many sprains, the horse's steps being lighter and saver. lighter and surer.

SAN FRANCISCO MARKETS

SAN FRANCISCO. June 10 .- [Special to TRE IMES.] The fruit market was quite active TIMES.] The fruit market was quite activation with slight increase in prices for nearly all with slight increase in prices for nearly all varieties of summer fruits. Cherries are arriving very freely and supplies, if not releved by the canneries, would greatly exceed the demand. Currants are also in abundant supply and only meet with moderate inquiry. Gooseberries continue quite scarce and are firm at quotations. Receipts of strawberries are not large, still prices are lower. Citrus fruits are almost entirely neglected, while for dried fruit the inquiry is entirely confined to bleached peaches and apricots.

Tons of Blackberries.

[Pometropic.]

W. E. Ferguson will have twenty tons of merchantable blackberries on his ranch this season near Glendora, and has just closed a contract with Howell & Craig to deliver fifteen tons picked at the ranch at 4½ cents per pound, beginning July 1. This allows him to sell his berries up to that time at the market price to retail dealers, and he thinks the price to retail dealers, and he thinks to dispose of five or six tons at a good price before his contract is in force. The berries will be haused to the Whittier canneries by teams, leaving the patch about noon each day. The pickparca about noon each day. The picking of the fruit will require all the white help there is to be had, and, with two dryers to employ cutters, there is just a possibility of a dearth of help this summer. When the market for this summer. When the market for blackberries is assured eyen at a low figure, there is a fortune in them

THE APIARY. Gentle Bees. [Farm and Fireside.]

Certainly there are gentle bees and bees not gentle—bees that may be handled without gloves or veil without making a hostile movement, and bees that will sting and fight at the slightest provocation, or without any.

There is no reason why the beekeeper should not give attention to the strain of his bees—why he should not breed to produce gentle bees. Here is a colony of bees, Italians, known and feared in the animal for their party dispession. or bees, Italians, known and feared in the apiary for their ugly disposition. They are quarrelsome and sting when there appears to be no occasion. The colony casts a swarm, and the young bees, as they begin to appear, show the characteristics of the old ones. They are "peppery," "touchy," and have to be let alone.

The bee-keeper with such a colony can endure them no longer. Their ugliness is due to the queen, and he kills the old queen and the new and introduces new ones. After the old bees in both colonies have lived out their time-duces new ones. After the old bees in both colonies have lived out their time-there is no more stinging; yes, there may be stinging, but the bees with the ugly disposition have gone and a gentler race is in its place.

There is no need of keeping ugly bees. Change the queen immediately, that the ugly bees may disappear as soon as possible. It pays to get good queens—something better than dollar queens, although it must be said that a dollar queen may prove to be as good as as a $5-queen, and if prolific and gentle, make her the mother of all the queens in the aplary. But her queen progeny should not be mated with her drone progeny, to prevent in-and-in breeding. Little may be known on this subject with reference to bees, but it may be supposed that the effect may be similar to that in other forms of life.

To avoid in-and-in breeding with absolute certainty is probably impossible, but if there he several original or first.

olute certainty is probably impossible but if there be several original or first queens from different races instead of one in the apiary; then the queen pro-geny of one mother may meet the drone progeny of another queen mother.

VENTURA HONEY CROP. [Santa Paula Chronicle.]

According to the estimates of Mr. J McIntyre of Fillmore, who is thoroughly acquainted with the subject, there are some 10,000 colonies of bees in this county and the average yield for sixteen years of one large apiary has been seventy-four pounds per colony. The average price is 4 cents per pound. The honey is extracted by machinery and sold in sixty-pound cans, and the comb returned to the hive. Ventura county ships, honey by the ton and has shipped 8,000,000 pounds in one year. The immense tracts of unclaimed mountain land covered with sage are the favorite foraging ground of the busy bee and many persons are supported by this industry with comparatively little outlay. teen years of one large apiary has been outlay.

Meat a Necessity. [Farm and Fireside,] Meat is a necessity when the food is lacking in albuminoids, for the production of eggs calls for a supply of certain substances that are more concentrated in meat than in any other food. Birds are carniverous, graniverous and omniverous, the first feeding on meat, the second on grains and the third on both meat and grains. These foods are not used exclusively, for grass enters into the general list and a carniverous or graniverous bird will sometimes accept food belonging to the otherwise accept food belonging to the otherwise.

or graniverous bird will sometimes accept food belonging to the other class. The grain-eating birds have their food prepared in the gizzard, but the carniverous birds are capable of tearing their food to pieces, the gizzards, however, assisting; but their gizzards are thin, while those of the grain-eating birds are very strong and thick.

Our domestic fowls are really creatures of circumstances, being what man has made them by selection and breeding. They belong really to the granhas made them by selection and breeding. They belong really to the granivorous class, but man has made them capable of utilizing all tinds of food.
In the wild state the fowls lay but few eggs in, a season and cease, and they readily find any proportion of animal food required, in the shape of insects, especially in spring and summer, but the domestic hen is expected to lay at seasons when insects, seeds and grass cannot be had.

If meat is fed it soon returns its cost by increasing the number of eggs layed.

by increasing the number of eggs layed. It will not suffice to feed fat meat, for such is just the opposite of that which should be used. Meat should be lean, as only the lean contains the nitrogen. which is one of the main constituents of eggs. Meat is not expensive if the coarser kinds are used; and if only fed twice a week will be of some advantage. There are those who use milk as a substitute, but it must not be overlooked that the hen is not capable of drinking enough milk in quantity to supply the place of meat.

E. W. H., Riverside, writes the Cultivator and Poultry Keeper that he has found Poud's Extract, injected in the the nostrils, an excellent remedy for this disease in its first stages. We would like to hear from others on this subject, and advocate publishing all successful remedies.
